smaller world, isn't it?

And growing smaller with every breakthrough in communications! As space is mastered...capitals converge...frontiers draw together...far-off shores move in just a little closer.

The nearer Valparaiso is drawn to Vancouver, the greater its attraction for the Canadian businessman. That's why, in a world grown smaller, the Bank of Montreal had to grow a little larger.

To serve the Canadian businessman, we have blanketed Canada with over 900 branches. We maintain offices in the United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, Mexico, and Japan...through an affiliate, Bank of London & Montreal, Limited, we offer a network of offices throughout the Caribbean area...and banking correspondents in every civilized country complete our global span.

Anywhere you name, we can serve you through our International Organization. Try us—you'll find there's nothing small about the comprehensive services made available to you.

INTRODUCTION

Canadian Trade Index has been the authoritative guide to buying and selling in Canada for over 60 years. It contains a comprehensive list of Canadian manufacturers having more than a local distribution for their products, irrespective of membership in The Canadian Manufacturers' Association. The Index always keeps up-to-date with the buying and selling needs of the times and it can be safely stated that it is the foremost directory of its kind in Canada today.

This new edition is designed to give you a detailed account of 12,250 manufacturing companies across Canada. Listed for your easy reference are company name, address, names and titles of operating executives, branch offices and plants, brand names, parent and subsidiary companies, foreign representatives, number of employees, a geographical breakdown of manufacturing establishments by province and city and a finely classified directory of Canadian made products.

With more than 10,000 detailed product classifications, the Index will ordinarily enable prospective purchasers to get in touch at once with manufacturers of the goods desired. Where specialized information is needed, buyers are invited to call on the service of the Commercial Intelligence Department of the Association. It is suggested that importers abroad should first communicate with the nearest Canadian Government Trade Commissioner, consulting the list of their addresses on pages 210-211 of the Export Section. Representatives of overseas firms visiting Canada are invited to call at the Head Office of the Association where they will be given every possible assistance.

Users of the Index will find the regular advertising sections invaluable in supplementing the information contained in the alphabetical and classified sections. Advertising page numbers are indicated opposite the classified and alphabetical listings of advertisers and, in addition, your attention is invited to the Classified Advertising section beginning on page 1522. For other classifications of advertisers see Table of Contents on page 3.

At the beginning of each section you will find a detailed description of how the Index may be used to its fullest advantage on your behalf.

The publishers wish to thank the manufacturers, government departments, and other organizations who have furnished information upon which this book is based.

At home or abroad,

WHEN YOU BANK...

we try to offer a more intimate service

We deal with many businessmen. We get to know their problems, their hopes and aims, the way in which they operate their business, the difficulties they encounter—and because of this we can give a more knowledgeable service, a more intimate service. Our correspondent banks in any country in the world are staffed with the same kind of interested people, people who make it their business to know the important details. That is why, at home or abroad, your Toronto-Dominion Bank manager is a good friend—a good business friend, and he'd like to prove to you that people at The Bank really do make the difference.

PLANT GROWTH

Québec — abundantly rich in natural resources, and at the very hub of world-wide transportation facilities — is an active, fast-growing economy. It's a good place, and a good time, for your enterprise to locate and share in the growth of today's dynamic Québec. We would welcome you as a partner in our future . . . the result can be mutual prosperity.

For further information on La Province de Québec, write the Minister of Industry and Commerce, Parliament Buildings, Québec City, P.Q., Canada — or our offices in Paris, London, New York.

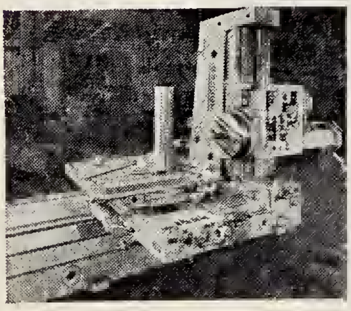
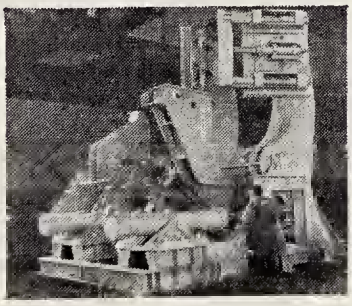
Machine Tools

C.M.C. skill and experience in machine tool production is put to good use in the rebuilding of all types of lathes, drills, millers, shapers, planers and borers. Old, worn-out equipment is completely overhauled and restored to first-class operating condition. New C.M.C. machine tools, including high production foundry grinders, multiple spindle drills and combination milling heads, incorporate the most modern features to provide peak performance and the utmost in production economy. This skill and experience also enables C.M.C. to offer a comprehensive equipment and machinery maintenance service. C.M.C. engineers work directly with your plant superintendents in planning part replacement and machine rebuilding programs to minimize downtime and other production delays.



Steel Fabrication

The C.M.C. Fabrication Division boasts the most modern equipment and facilities for building bridges, pressure vessels, water control structures, and operating machinery—through fabrication and machining to trial assembly—ready for installation. Since design and development work is demanding in both time and facilities, many of our customers have found it convenient and economical to turn over their projects to us. We shall be pleased to demonstrate our engineering ability to produce any kind of standard or special fabrication to meet your specifications and process requirements.



Special Purpose Machinery

The C.M.C. Machinery Division is ready to assist you with its complete facilities and broad experience in designing and building special machinery to solve specific problems in fields of steel production (basic and finishing lines), paper mills (hardboard machines, etc), rubber and plastics industries (mills, presses, vulcanizers, autoclaves, etc.) and many other fabricating and process industries. If you have a production problem involving costs, efficiency or productivity, call us without obligation. Our engineers are at your service. Working alone or in close co-operation with your engineering department, they will develop the equipment best suited for your needs.

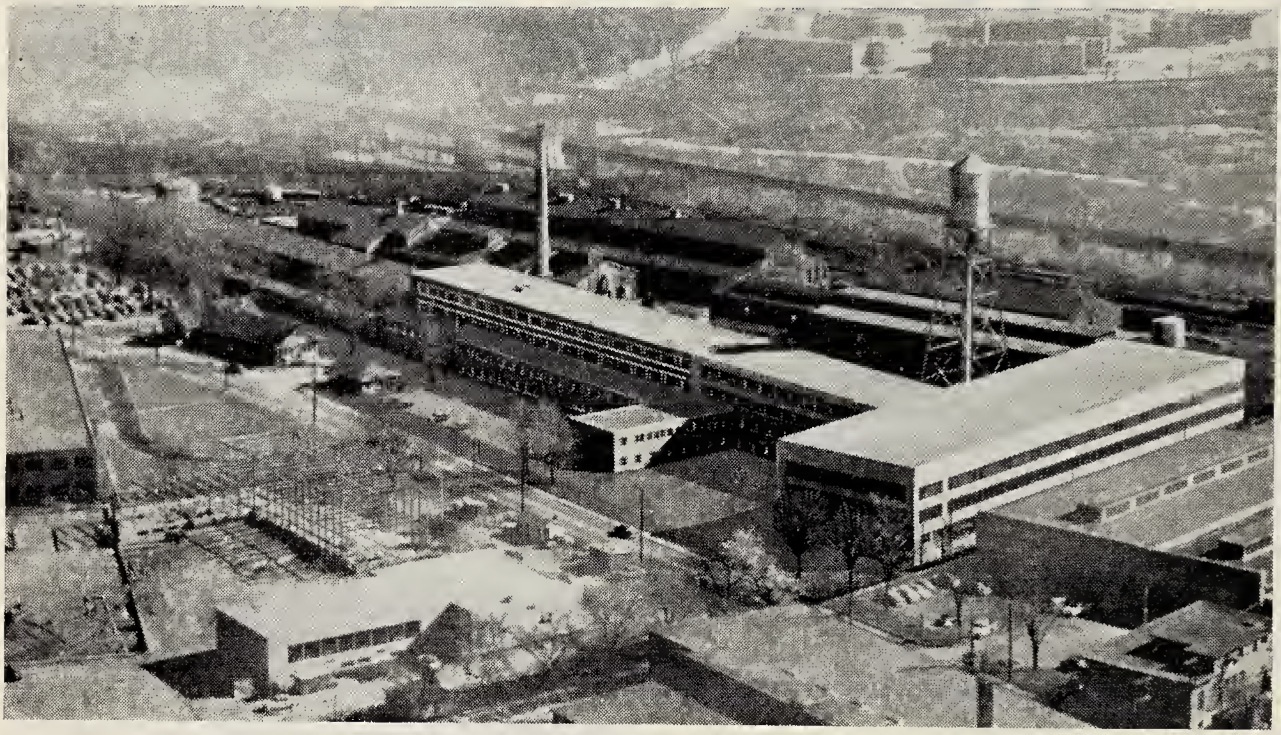
Need heavy equipment?



Investigate our world-wide reputation

Within recent times Canadian Allis-Chalmers has built and shipped turbines to Brazil, cement plants to Argentina and India, a paper mill lime sludge kiln for Chile, major centrifugal pumps for a paper mill in Tasmania, jaw crushers for a steel complex in India and grinding mills for a mining plant in Greece. Others are under construction.

Here are projects in which we have had excellent experience:

1: Hydraulic turbines utilizing Francis, Kaplan, propellar, and impulse wheels for a very wide range of heads and capacities. We can also furnish butterfly control valves together with intake and control gates.

2: Major equipment for complete cement plants including crushers, screens, grinding mill, kilns, coolers, and all related equipment to complete the installation.

3: Rotary kilns complete with accessory equipment for the production of lime from natural raw materials or calcium carbonate sludge in paper mill operations.

4: Crushing, screening and grinding equipment for rock quarries or major mining operations.

5: Pelletizing plants for the nodulizing and heat-hardening of iron ore concentrates, which produce ideal blast furnace feed.

6: Supplementary equipment including complete line of centrifugal pumps, rotary and centrifugal compressors, also 5 and 15 KV metal-clad switchgear.

MAY WE QUOTE ON SUCH A JOB FOR YOU? WE HAVE THE FULL CO-OPERATION OF THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT FOR EXPORT CREDIT INSURANCE AND FINANCING.

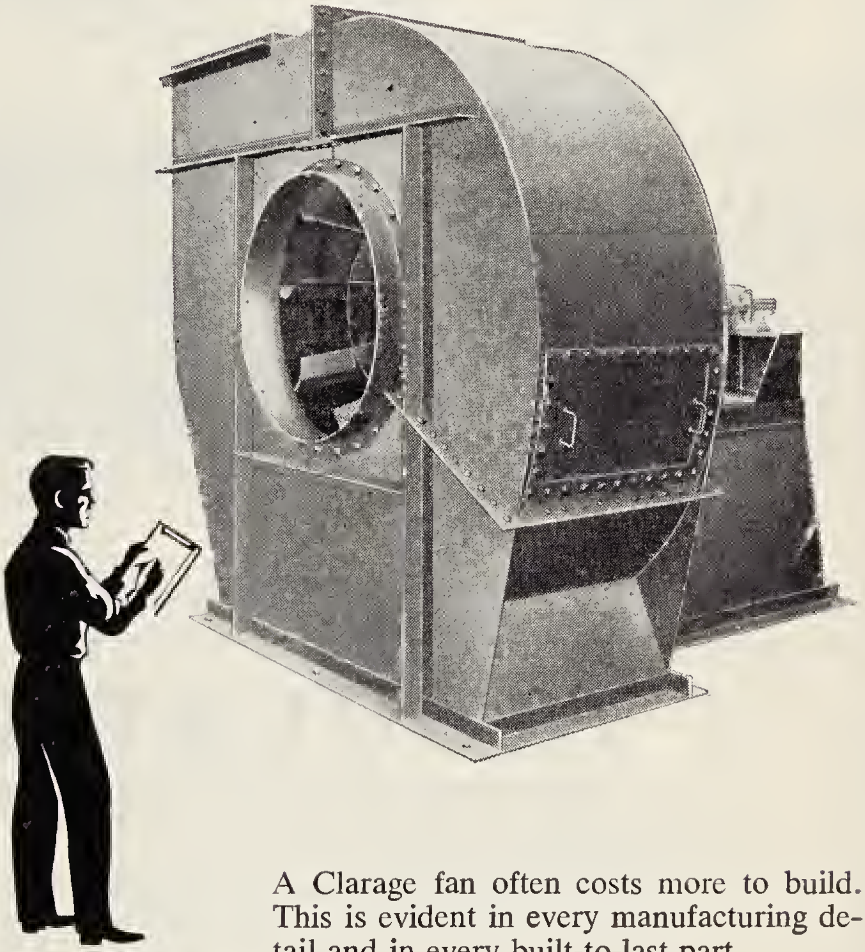
"Sure, you can (perhaps) buy air handling equipment for less . . .

. . . but not the

thru-and-thru

quality of

CLARAGE"



Under the pressure of today's competition, all too many companies have become price conscious . . . instead of quality conscious. Result: products are cheapened; useful life is shortened; past reputations are meaningless.

Clarage, on the other hand, has continually built for the last half-century, the same high quality air handling and conditioning equipment for the value-conscious user.

A Clarage fan often costs more to build. This is evident in every manufacturing detail and in every built-to-last part.

That such craftsmanship pays big dividends is best evidenced by the fact that all 100 of America's largest corporations are users of Clarage products.

On your next air handling assignment don't settle for less than the best. Insist on Clarage quality.

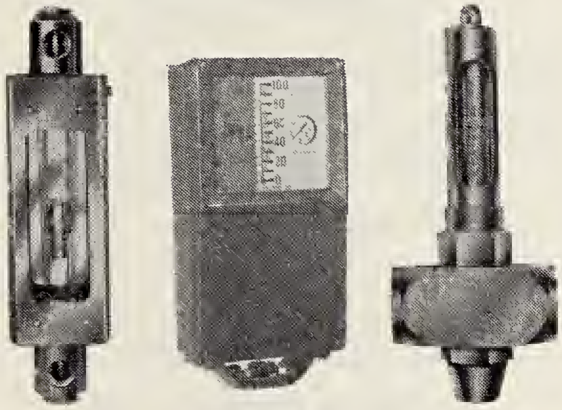
FEED...PUMP...CONTROL

...With Wallace & Tiernan Industrial Metering Equipment

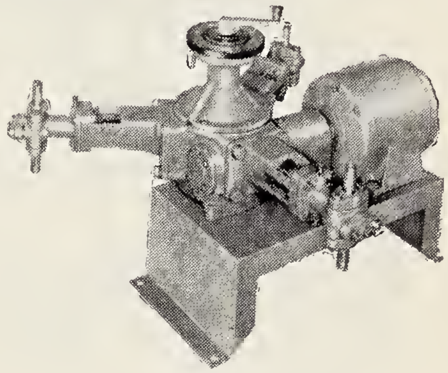
If you have solids, liquids, or gases moving through your plant, your process, Wallace & Tiernan equipment handles them automatically . . . cleanly . . . efficiently.

For LIQUIDS and GASES



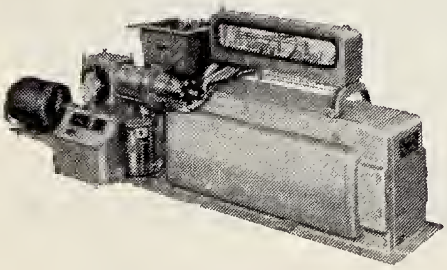
W&T Varea-meters and Purge Meters handle a wide fluid metering range. Capacities—Purge Meters: 0.08 to 83 gph water; 1.0 to 420 scfh air. Varea-meters: 0.08 to 333 gpm water; 1.1 to 1680 scfm air. Varea-meter accuracy ±2%, special calibration ±1%. Glass-tube models handle most fluids. Metal-tube meters give extra safety in hazardous service. Accessories include magnetic indicators, lights, heaters, frost guards. Pneumatic transmitters control other process equipment.

For LIQUIDS



W&T Plunger Metering Pumps (Series 150, 200-A, 400, 600) assure long pumping life . . . convenience in operation . . . minimum maintenance. Capacities range from 0.35 to 645 gph against up to 4000 psi. Choice of construction materials gives safe handling of corrosive or viscous liquids. Several liquid ends or drive units may be ganged to give greater capacities or proportional blending. Flow signals from other feeding equipment control pumping rate through a pneumatic controller.

For DRY, FREE-FLOWING SOLIDS



W&T belt-type feeders handle up to 1½" particle sizes. Gravimetrics feed 1 to 180,000 lbs./hr; volumetrics, 0.001 to 3600 cfh. Belt-type feeders and meters transmit proportional flow signals to other equipment . . . give continuous blending, sure-fire process control.

For GASES

V-notch Chlorinators feed 0.5 to 8000 lbs. chlorine per day. Chlorination disinfects process waters, prevents slime, reduces maintenance shutdowns. V-notch Variable-Orifice gives precise and wide-range feeding, lends itself to manual or automated control. Similar equipment feeds ammonia, sulfur dioxide, and carbon dioxide.

. . . And this equipment is only part of Wallace & Tiernan's industrial line. Other products include pressure sensitive instruments and diaphragm pumps.

If you have a feeding, controlling, or measuring problem, Wallace & Tiernan can help you. Write Dept. 64.28-A.

Times may change... but Jenkins high standards remain

Products may be modified, new developments incorporated, new techniques utilized — but Jenkins standards of quality and craftsmanship remain as high as that day, in 1869, when "A Fair Offer" was first published.

A Fair Offer

"If you will put a Jenkins Valve, recommended for your particular service, on the worst place you can find —where you cannot keep other valves tight—and if it is not perfectly tight or it does not hold steam, oil, acids, water or other fluids longer than any other valve, you may return it and your money will be refunded."

Jenkins Bros Limited

For more than 90 years buyers of Jenkins valves have been given this unparalleled assurance, inviting test of Jenkins performance, not merely in average applications, but rather in the very toughest you can find.

It is republished from time to time as a reminder that these constant high standards are an integral part of every Jenkins valve you buy. Jenkins Bros. Limited, Lachine, Que.

BRONZE

Even where water must be used as the only lubricant, BEARIUM METAL does not seize or score the shaft. The reason is that BEARIUM METAL, because of its superior frictional properties, is self-lubricating. Secret of its amazing performance is due to the uniform distribution of microscopic particles within the copper-tin grains rather than between the grain boundaries as found in ordinary bronzes. So, if you have a bearing requirement which calls for dependable, trouble-free performance — then BEARIUM METAL is your best buy in bearing bronze.

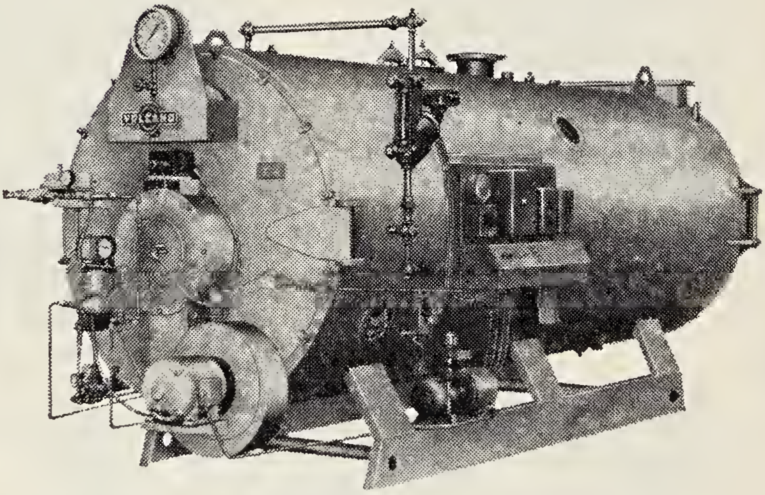
Duofin

WATER TUBE BOILERS

Volcano Duofin boilers feature double fins — one on each side of the water tubes — to provide:

- Effective protection for the insulating walls
- More rapid transmission of heat
- Improved internal circulation

Six different series, 5 basic models in each. Ratings and capacities up to 2,000 BHP or 70,000 lbs. of steam per hour.



STARFIRE

AUTOMATIC BOILERS

Outstanding packaged power plants, Starfire Automatic Boilers combine ease of installation, superior performance, and low operating costs.

- Most modern combination boilers and oil-or-gas firing units on the market — 5 HP to 500 HP.
- Compact design fits small boiler room space.
- No foundation or large chimney needed — only a vent pipe to clear surrounding building.
- Connect a Starfire boiler to service lines and it's ready to operate.

Illustrated, factual folders available.

EXCLUSIVE DISTRIBUTORSHIPS AVAILABLE for well-established firms interested in representing a highly-profitable line of automatic firing equipment. Your inquiries will be welcomed.

CAN WE HELP YOU?

PLASTIC MOULDINGS AND EXTRUSIONS —

We have complete facilities at Gananoque for supplying you with thermoplastics of every type—including engineering, tooling, designing and decorative finishing.

If you have plans to modernize your products or display material, it will pay you to discuss your plans with us. Even the most massive mouldings are easily handled by our newest injection moulding machine of 210 oz. capacity.

HOT COILED SPRINGS —

Our Oshawa facilities are at your service if you have a spring problem — and whether you need one of a kind or hundreds. We will coil hot wound springs to your specifications in bar diameters from ⅜″ to 1 ⅞″—inside spring diameters from ¾″ to 10″—in free lengths up to 30″.

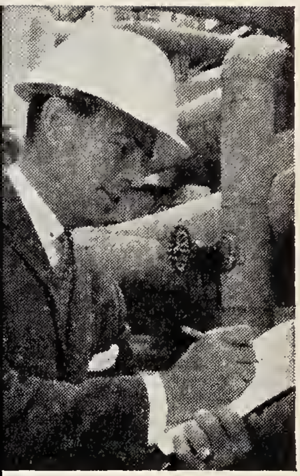
7:00 AM Up to a shower in Crane's extra long 5′6″ tub.

8:30 AM Traffic moving well. Fantastic fluid control system in that oil refinery. (Valves, piping and controls by Crane.)

9:30 AM Comfortable in the office. Heating, air conditioning always efficient. (Crane made them that way.)



11:30 AM Pleased to get an order for this factory. (Notice all the piping and valves are Crane.)

CRANE PRODUCTS ARE A COMMUNITY AFFAIR

No matter what your business or industry, Crane products affect you daily. In modern residences and atomic power plants, in pulp mills, oil refineries and food plants . . . Crane products are at work. In plumbing, from fixtures to all kinds of pipes and fittings you never see, in heating systems, in air conditioning, in municipal water works, corporation brass and electronic flow control systems . . . Crane is the criterion. Crane and its several divisions maintain dozens of offices and plants across the nation geared to deliver the highest standard of product and service.

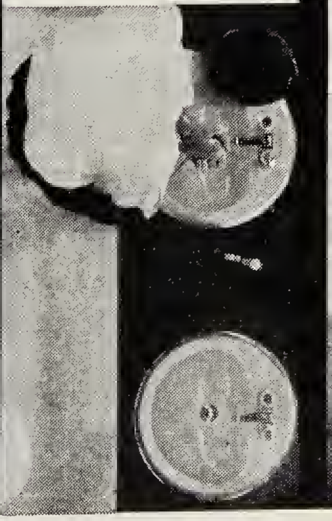
5:15 PM Going home. Not thinking how secure the community is with McAvity hydrants and understreet fittings.

6:00 PM Pleasure to wash up in the extra bathroom. (Those smart twin lavatories are Crane.)



9:00 PM Recess at the School Meeting. A quick drink at one of the (Crane) fountains. Amazing how Crane products handle water right from its source, to use and disposal.

11:30 PM Rest ahead. (Crane Dial-Ese faucets can't drip . . . drip. Dependable quiet Crane heating, too.) Crane products never sleep, give the community round-the-clock service.

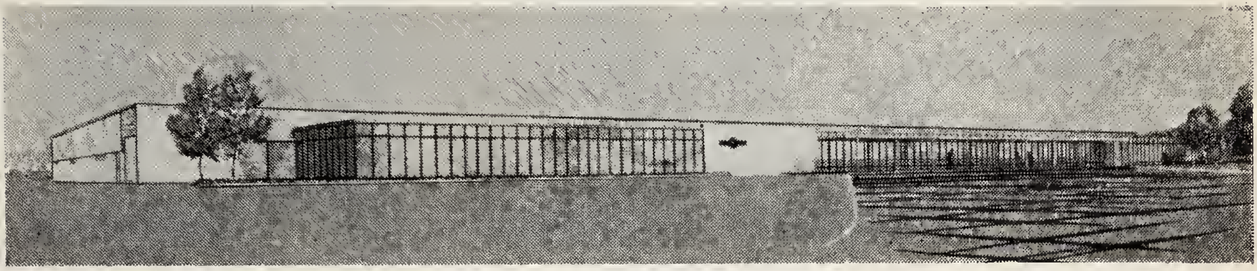
ELECTROLUX (CANADA) LIMITED

The first Canadian-made Electrolux* vacuum cleaner came off the line at 1725 Basin St., Montreal in April, 1934; at this factory there was a floor area of 30,000 square feet. In 1946 operations were moved to the four-storey 95,000 square feet building on Laurier Ave. East. In 1949 a floor polisher was added to the company's line of domestic and industrial cleaning products.



The new factory division plant of ELECTROLUX (Canada) Limited

Now in 1964, a single-storey plant of 125,000 square feet is being built in Pointe Claire. This is on a 17-acre property facing the Trans-Canada Highway near Montée St. Remi and manufacturing will start in July.

This is DOFASCO

Canada's Pioneering Steel Producer at Hamilton, Ontario

For half a century Dofasco has pioneered new techniques in steelmaking to provide better steel for Canadians. Two impressive Dofasco firsts are the oxygen steel making process and Open Coil Annealing. New products developed by Dofasco include steel plate, tin plate and continuous galvanized steel. Dofasco is constantly searching and probing for improvements in the process of making steel, for as Canada grows in its role as a vital industrial nation, so shall the demand for steel increase. And Dofasco, as Canada's pioneering steel producer, shall play an even more significant part in the future of Canada — and its people.

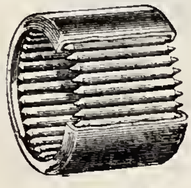
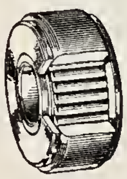
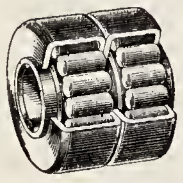
One of these Torrington Bearings may solve a design problem for you...



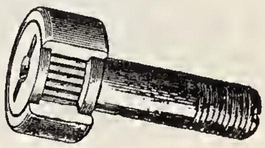
Type DC Needle Bearing is suitable for applications where size, weight and cost must be held to a minimum.



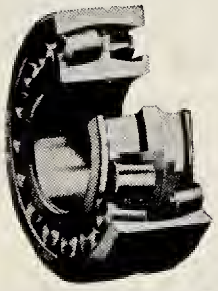
Type NBC Needle Bearing is designed for aircraft applications to be used in conjunction with standard AN bolts.



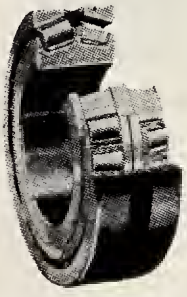
Type PN (Double Row) Needle Bearing meets all aircraft pulley requirements for primary control applications.



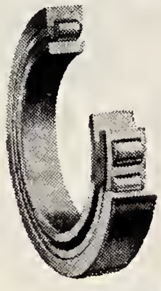
Type CR Needle Bearing is designed for cam follower service and rolling loads, where outer race is not supported by housing.



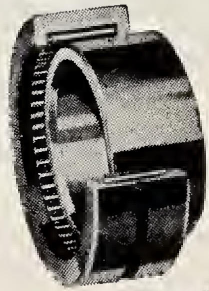
Self-Aligning Spherical Roller Bearing is designed for heavy-duty applications to meet conditions of misalignment.



Double Row Tapered Roller Bearing carries heavy radial and thrust loads where maximum stability is required.



Single Row Straight Roller Bearing is adaptable for high radial loads where simplicity of design, assembly and maintenance are important.



Type HD Needle Bearing is particularly suitable for severe load applications and the most exacting service conditions.

It may not have occurred to you that there are so many different types of Torrington Bearings—or that the completeness of the line of these modern, anti-friction bearings makes them adaptable to many design requirements.

Pictured above are eight different types—and there are others, all different in design, to assure you a wide choice to meet any specific requirement. Each is engineered for a particular task—or combination of design requirements. Individually each offers the same characteristic advantages of unit design, anti-friction operation, high capacity, efficient lubrication, simple installation and maintenance.

The result is that in almost any application where Torrington Bearings are employed the design problem is simplified; operating efficiency and service life are increased; manufacturing costs are reduced; and sales features are added.

Investigate for yourself how the advantages of Torrington's complete line of anti-friction bearings can be of assistance in your product planning. Full information is available on request, and our engineering staff is ready to help you with any design requirement.

HYTEMPITE — "The World's Standard High Temperature Cement" famous for its economy of application, strong bond, uniformity and dependability.

TRIPLE-A PROTECTIVE COATINGS—for decoration and lasting protection of all surfaces . . . for prevention of corrosion due to steam, moisture, alkalies, chemical fumes, and other destructive agents.

INSULBRIX — light weight cellular low heat storage insulating fire brick for direct or indirect exposure to flame and furnace gases.

INSULAG—a superior plastic refractory insulator and sealer for lagging interior and exterior surfaces of high temperature equipment.

INSULCRETE—a light weight cellular insulating refractory concrete for furnace linings, heat shields and kindred uses.

Q-CHROME—neutral chrome-base refractory with very high fusion point for lining and repairing steel furnaces, soaking pits, smelting furnaces, etc.

Q-CHROMASTIC—plastic super-refractory used as a wash or veneer coating for furnace walls.

HEARTH-CRETE — special patented chrome-base castable refractory of outstanding merit for building monolithic hearths or bottoms in forging and other steel heating furnaces.

ACID-PROOF CEMENTS—plastic, ready-mixed acid-proof and heat-resisting cements for bonding and repairing of acid-resisting masonry structures.

QUIGLEY REFRACTORY GUN — "Scientific Mechanical Application of Refractories in Plastic Form," for quick furnace repairs—hot patching—protective surfacing—baffle construction and maintenance.

Q-SEAL — plastic, expansive joint sealing compound for threaded, flange, gasket, and metal-to-metal joints.

DAMIT—makes and keeps joints tight. Dams leaks in water, air, gas, and low pressure steam lines. Lubricates as it seals . . . prevents "Frozen Joints."

The story of a pickle packer and his export partner

1944 A glut in the cucumber market left one grower with his crop of 2,000 bushels unsold. He made 400 barrels of dill pickles, using an old Dutch recipe, and began selling them to restaurants.

1951 Now well established in the restaurant market, the packer enlarged his tiny premises and went after sales to the retail trade.

1959 The packer was persuaded to exhibit at Trade Fairs abroad. He chose fairs in Jamaica, Trinidad, Britain, Scandinavia and the Low Countries for his first venture into foreign markets.

1962 Orders were coming in from Europe and the West Indies. The firm now had 50,000 sq. ft. of processing space. It exhibited in seven African countries, Australia, Singapore, Hong Kong and Japan. That year the company sold 89% of all Canadian pickles exported.

1963 Selling pickles in 36 countries around the world, the company doubled its plant to 100,000 sq. ft. for the biggest year in its history.

Who was the Pickle Packer's export partner?

The Canadian Department of Trade and Commerce, through its officials in Ottawa and Trade Commissioners abroad.

"They not only persuaded me to go into Trade Fairs," the president of the company says, "but they gave me counsel, showed me how to operate abroad and did the missionary work to stimulate buyer interest before I even arrived on the scene."

The Department of Trade and Commerce is equally at the disposal of every other Canadian producer or manufacturer interested in profit and expansion through exports. There are more than 150 Trade Commissioners stationed abroad at 65 posts in 47 countries. Their services and foreign trade know-how are at your command.

Foreword

By Hon. Mitchell Sharp, M.P.
Minister of Trade and Commerce

Exports are vital to Canada's general prosperity, to the healthy functioning of her domestic economy, and to her continuing development as a nation. This country's rapid industrial expansion over the years following World War II was due in no small part to the effects of widening our export markets.

Exports can be very profitable to firms willing to put forth the necessary energy to enter markets abroad, and will become more so as new and vigorous trade policies are developed. The advantages of export sales are obvious. They increase a firm's production, which narrows overhead and reduces unit costs, enabling the company to be more competitive both at home and abroad. They also help spread the risks. As business conditions abroad frequently vary from those in Canada, exports can reduce costly seasonal slumps in production and employment. A firm's entry into export markets has often proved to be the first step in its transition from a modest enterprise to the world of big business.

In view of the manifest importance of exports to the national economy and to the Canadian manufacturing industry, it is most appropriate that the Export Section should occupy such a prominent place in the Canadian Trade Index. It is also fitting that the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, which has done so much over the years to foster the growth of Canada's export trade, has featured the Export Section in this manner.

The following pages provide a comprehensive description of the methods and practices of export trading, a bibliography of export references and an outline of the manifold services available to exporters from the Federal Government and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. There is also a list of the countries in which this department's trade commissioners are located, showing the titles and addresses of these officers. For those firms interested in entering the field, I can think of no better introduction to the fascinating and profitable world of export markets.

The Canadian Trade Index as a whole provides an essential service to Canadian business, assisting as it does both domestic and foreign buyers to locate and do business with manufacturers across Canada. Its importance in stimulating export trade alone is attested to by the fact that our 144 trade commissioners stationed at 65 posts in 47 countries of the trading world distribute copies to foreign businessmen and government officials throughout their territories.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the Department of Trade and Commerce have for many years worked towards common goals. I feel the Association is to be congratulated on this important and continuing contribution towards those goals, and thus to the interests of Canadian business as a whole.

EXPORTING IS A CHALLENGE

FOREIGN trade is one of the pillars of Canadian prosperity, and offers a challenge to enterprising firms engaged in the production of commodities for which markets may be found in other countries. Canada is in fifth position among trading nations of the world, and the preservation of her stable economy depends to a large extent on the ability to export the products of her factories, fields, fisheries, forests and her mines. As more than twenty per cent of the Gross National Product consists of goods and services supplied to other lands, it is readily apparent that a large proportion of Canada's population is engaged, directly or indirectly, in foreign trade. During the last thirty-five years, there has been a gradual shift in the composition of our exports from raw to processed materials. Articles classed as chiefly manufactured represent approximately 37 per cent of the total, while semi-processed materials account for 31 per cent and raw materials for only 32 per cent.

Export trade yields the best returns to firms that maintain continuity of supply. Experience has shown that those most likely to succeed are engaged in a well-established domestic trade, and have an assured production which permits them to create a favourable reputation and develop a demand for their products in other lands.

Experience is the prime requisite for any individual embarking on export trade, followed by capital. The latter may be dissipated rapidly without the former. Foreign tariff and import restrictions, transportation procedure, currency and finance problems, packaging and documentation are a few of the shoals on which a venture into uncharted waters may founder. Capital is necessary to tide over the intervals between the time that services are rendered or shipments made and payments are received, as well as to meet the unexpected demands that may be experienced. However, with the assistance and guidance readily available to businessmen, the problems are not as complex as is sometimes feared.

Prospective exporters might well consider the following fundamental questions before embarking on what can prove to be a rewarding voyage of discovery:

Does our business lend itself to export, or are the products we manufacture suited only to the domestic market?

Does the capacity of our plant meet the domestic and possible foreign demand for our product? What proportion of the output can be made available for shipment abroad on a continuing basis?

What countries are now purchasing products similar to those being manufactured in our plant?

What is the volume of their purchases, and their sources of supply?

Are these items being imported because they are not being produced in the countries concerned, or because of a temporary shortage?

If similar products are being made in the countries where a consumer demand exists, are local manufacturers protected by a tariff on imports, by import quotas, or by some other device?

Does some special feature of the Canadian product provide a marketing and merchandising advantage in foreign countries?

Are payment problems likely to be experienced, due to a shortage of dollars?

Are shipping services adequate, and transportation costs sufficiently low to overcome possible domestic competition and that from other countries?

Which markets have a growth potential?

What Canadian firms are presently exporting to the countries concerned, and are Canadian products highly regarded?

Are there any Canadian export regulations that apply to the products it is proposed to export?

Export trade has national significance. It involves a live interest in the countries concerned, courtesy in the transaction of business with overseas customers, integrity, and a continuity of vigorous service, which contribute to the creation of a favourable reputation for the firm and its representatives. Goodwill engendered by one or more Canadian companies also leads to the development of friendly relations with Canada.

IMPORTANT POINTS FOR SUCCESSFUL EXPORTING

1. Make firm long-term export plans.
2. Manufacture and supply the right product for the market.
3. Institute a simple and logical system of costing for exports.
4. Offer reasonable credit terms.
5. Employ personnel who are experienced in export and travel and who know the languages.
6. Visit customers through regular trips overseas, and do not attempt to organize exports solely from the desk in the home office.
7. Support your product and your visits to customers abroad with attractive multi-lingual promotional literature and advertising.
8. Use the right approach in your overseas dealings; acquaint yourself with local conditions and customs; make your contacts in a friendly manner; diligently avoid the "hard sell" approach.
9. Never commit yourself to an arrangement you cannot fulfil. Nothing does more harm than to fail to live up to undertakings on prices, or on deliveries and servicing of export customers.
10. Exhibit at trade fairs abroad.

HOW TO EXPORT

EXPORT is not merely an extension of domestic trade. Each market has its own peculiarities in taste, customs and business methods. A full understanding of the basics of export is therefore necessary, and an appreciation of the problems of your overseas customers needed.

On the following pages some of the principles and methods to be employed in the export trade are outlined. Expert assistance is yours merely for the asking at every stage of the export business. Later in this section you will be acquainted, in detail, with the export services available from the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the Department of Trade and Commerce. The material following is not meant to serve as a comprehensive manual of export practices. Its primary purpose is to indicate broadly some of the matters to which the exporter, or prospective exporter, should give serious consideration.

EXPORT DISTRIBUTION AND MARKETING

By Ivan E. Lenard, M.I.Ex., Executive Director, International Patented Products.

Export business can be undertaken and organized in many ways. Generally speaking, the penetration of foreign markets will start by making shipments abroad from the Canadian plant and later on the nature and volume of business might justify manufacturing abroad, either under license or by direct investment in factories located abroad.

The first step to be considered can be placed under the general heading of market information. It is essential to obtain accurate background information about the markets where business is contemplated. Market surveys can take many forms, depending on the information required. They vary from the most simple questionnaires covering such basic matters as: import restrictions; prevailing local prices; volume of current business; etc.; to highly specialized surveys to establish precise detailed information.

Basic data required in the initial stages leading to decisions as to whether business is possible, can be supplied through many channels, including the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, the chartered banks, etc. To provide information for more sophisticated market surveys requires either personal visits to the market or the services of foreign trade consultants, international market survey organizations and in some cases a combination of all.

The results of the market survey should also determine the best methods to be employed for obtaining maximum distribution. Distribution methods will vary considerably, depending on the characteristics of the market, as well as the product involved. Because of territorial and geographic considerations in some areas, no one agent or representative can assure adequate coverage. In some large European countries, or nations the size of India, it is usually desirable to deal with separate areas as individual market units within the total territory. These considerations might also arise in smaller countries, although in most cases it is possible to locate companies which can offer national distribution for most products.

There are many types of organizations available which should be considered before definite marketing plans are decided upon. Some of the better recognized export distribution organizations are: export agents or brokers located in Canada; commission agents; importer-wholesalers; distributors.

Export Agents or Brokers Located in Canada

Most of the major centres of Canada have a number of companies specialized in export distribution. These companies vary from large international trading organizations, specializing in a few products, to companies dealing with a wide variety of merchandise. In some cases these organizations purchase for their own account and pay cash on delivery in Canada for all transactions, while others develop business on a commission or fee basis.

Some of these companies specialize in certain markets only, while others have connections in most important export markets. Some have their own offices abroad but in most cases export companies in Canada employ local agents abroad. By representing a number of Canadian exporters they are in a position to spread travel and other expenses, thus enabling the Canadian manufacturer to benefit from lower overhead expenses, as well as specialized export knowledge. In most cases credit risks are either completely eliminated or reduced to the absolute minimum. Export agents can also cut down on transportation expenses by combining shipments and thus obtaining the most favourable freight rates.

There are also a number of export companies in Canada operating as combination export managers. Such companies act for the manufacturer as his own export department would do. Doing export work for a number of manufacturers, overhead expenses are shared and the manufacturer does not have to employ export staff of his own.

Commission Agents

Most countries offer a large number of organizations who represent foreign companies on a commission basis. These companies act as the manufacturer's own sales staff. In small countries these companies will handle a wide variety of products. In larger countries and more complex marketing territories, these companies become highly specialized in the types of goods they handle. In some European and Latin American countries, specialization reaches a high degree, whereby a commission agent in textiles, for example, will deal only in printed cotton goods.

Commission agencies vary considerably in size. They might be one-man operations, or they could employ over 100 salesmen of their own. In most cases, the established firms in the country have wide connections in the trade. They are very familiar with the basic requirements of the market. They sell direct to wholesalers, or in some cases direct to retailers, and expect to be reimbursed with a commission already included in the price offered to their customers. Rates of commission will fluctuate from a fraction of one percent to as much as 15% or 20%, depending on the product involved, the established customs in the trade and the functions the commission agent is expected to perform.

Depending on the arrangements concluded, the commission agent might be prepared to bear all costs of advertising, or leave such expenses to the manufacturer. In some cases the agent will be responsible for credit, while in other agreements all credit risks are to be the concern of the exporter. In the latter case, the exporter has the right to confirm or reject orders received from the commission agent.

Importer-Wholesalers

In many countries there are companies who purchase for their own account and offer distribution throughout an area in which they operate. In some small countries these organizations can offer national distribution but in larger countries, they will restrict their activities to a very specific marketing area. Generally speaking one can expect a reasonably high degree of specialization. These companies also employ a number of salesmen and sell direct to retail outlets. It is not uncommon for such companies to have a chain of retail outlets of their own, in addition to selling to other retailers in the trade.

Purchases will be made for the importer's own account and in such cases it is quite customary for the importer-wholesaler to undertake some advertising. Advertising and point of sale promotion expenses might be exclusively for the importer's account, or the exporter might allow for a promotion arrangement based on volume or some other consideration.

As a general rule, these companies expect to be appointed on an exclusive basis for a definite period of time. If most of the advertising is for the exporter's account, it might be possible to make non-exclusive arrangements. These companies can be expected to provide full service if the product involved requires some maintenance or periodic replacement of parts.

Distributors

The function of distributors differs greatly from country to country and from product to product. Generally speaking, distributors import direct only after the line has already been well introduced and offers reasonable turnover. In most cases distributors will not undertake direct advertising but will be active in the sales promotion field. This type of organization will engage in the highest degree of specialization and offers opportunities for the deepest market penetration. Exclusivity in clearly defined marketing areas might, in some cases, be requested, although it is not uncommon to be able to deal with most, if not all, distributors in the trade.

Except in most unusual cases, credit terms will be requested. These will vary in length of time, depending on general economic conditions prevalent in the country. Particularly since the end of World War II, some distributors expect a fair proportion of their inventory to be financed by the exporter.

While the clearly defined marketing facilities outlined above are based on generalization, in many countries some of these functions tend to overlap. A combination of functions can be attained for some products in some markets. Each case should be closely examined and all factors carefully analyzed before binding commitments are agreed upon. In some countries the laws offer definite protection to local agents and make it extremely difficult to make changes in agency arrangements.

Generally speaking a commission agent or importer might be prepared to restrict his activities to the products of one manufacturer only in the field, particularly when the arrangement is of an exclusive nature. Distributors on the other hand will likely handle competitive products as well.

Often local manufacturers are prepared to act for the sale of allied products not manufactured by themselves. Such arrangements can lead to subsequent licensing agreements for manufacturing in the country involved. The advantages of dealing with an allied local manufacturer could be considerable and should lead to exchange of technical information, product development, etc.

Packing and Packaging

It is the responsibility of the exporter to see to it that goods shipped abroad arrive in good condition. Facilities for loading and unloading differ greatly in many ports of the world. In most cases today vessels can unload alongside, although there are still many important ports in the world where cargo must be lightered. Under any circumstances allowance must be made for adequate packing before the goods leave the manufacturer. To some extent the extra cost of heavy packing, where necessary, may be offset by the high local resale value of packing material. (See also comments under "Shipping and Marine Insurance.")

Air cargo is becoming a most important factor in foreign trade. Savings can be instituted, not only by elimination of heavy packing, but also by reducing local inventory costs through the shortening of the supply line.

Local tastes and preferences should be carefully considered in packaging. Wherever possible, printing should be in the language of the country of destination. Some countries impose a package tax when goods are landed and these considerations could be of utmost importance in meeting existing competition.

Sales Training

One of the most difficult problems facing the exporter is to provide adequate training to the people abroad who are expected to sell his product. The problem becomes multiplied when the product involved requires a degree of technical background and after-sales service. Language difficulties in translating installation or service literature also tend to complicate the picture.

Some companies solve this problem by inviting key personnel of overseas representatives to spend some time in Canada and obtain the necessary technical background first hand. Such trained personnel are then expected to educate sales and service staff locally. The cost of such training is usually borne by the exporter. Other companies employ travelling company representatives who do the training abroad. Travelling service representatives, on the payroll of the manufacturer, can also fill a most useful function.

The importance of clearly worded technical literature in the local language can not be overemphasized. In certain cases it is possible to have technical instructions permanently marked on the product in question and these should be, wherever possible, in the local language or dialect.

Training of Home Office Export Personnel

Export trade is becoming more and more the function of specialists. It is commonly believed that it is better to have an export specialist than a person very familiar with the product to be sold abroad. This is based on the theory that the export specialist will be able to obtain the necessary product knowledge more rapidly than would be the case in reverse.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association offers helpful facilities for the training of export personnel through the monthly meetings organized by its Export Study Clubs in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

FINANCING EXPORTS

By Edward R. Ernst,
Bank of Montreal.
Deputy General Manager,
International Division, Head Office.

THE MAJOR portion of Canada's foreign trade is financed and facilitated by the chartered banks under arrangements with their foreign branches and correspondent banks abroad. This system provides Canadian importers and exporters with a smooth-working efficient banking service at reasonable cost. Besides making outright advances against bills of exchange supported by documents of title covering both incoming and outgoing shipments, banks in Canada offer their customers a comprehensive range of financial and information facilities. Such services have been developed throughout the years to meet demands created by the steady growth of Canada's foreign trade.

In addition to financing the Canadian trader, an important share of our export trade is financed for foreign banks on a sight or short-term basis. In these cases, the Canadian exporter receives payment upon presentation of specified documents to the Canadian bank concerned, the latter relying upon receipt of settlement in due course from its correspondent bank.

Foreign Departments

All the Canadian banks have well-established administrative foreign or international departments in their head offices to deal with the many problems presented by international trade and payments in a constantly changing world. This reservoir of up-to-date information on political and economic conditions in every country of consequence is readily available to customers anywhere in Canada through a network of branches. As well as furnishing a comprehensive range of information facilities, including advice on financing procedures, these departments enable branches to ease the day-to-day problems of Canadian traders in many respects. The functions and operations of these head office departments have been augmented from time to time to meet the changing needs of those engaged in foreign trade in all parts of Canada. Our Bank, for instance, has sent representatives periodically to practically every part of the world since the last war to gather information at first hand to improve our services to the public.

Credit Risks

In export trade, as in the domestic market, the seller must assess the credit risk and quote terms of sale accordingly. In foreign trade, however, the normal risk must be considered in conjunction with the financial standing of the country of destination. The buyer may be perfectly willing and able to pay in his own currency, but, if his country suffers from a chronic shortage of foreign exchange, and particularly of dollars, the Canadian supplier may be faced with lengthy delay in obtaining settlement. He may even suffer outright loss.

Where buyers and sellers have an inter-company relationship or are otherwise well and favourably known to each other, and where there are no serious exchange transfer difficulties, exports are often arranged on an open account or consignment basis. Such sales are generally settled by mail or cable transfers through banking media and present no particular financing problems. These transactions are known as clean payments, and a large volume of these payments is handled daily by Canadian banks on instructions from correspondent banks around the world. Cash with the order is another relatively simple and effective method of settlement. This procedure is, however, seldom used in these highly competitive days.

The Documentary Draft

A large and growing proportion of Canadian export trade is financed by means of sight or time drafts drawn by shippers on buyers abroad. Such drafts are known as bills of exchange. They are usually accompanied by documents of title consisting of commercial and customs invoices, marine insurance policy or certificate, and a full set of ocean bills of lading, made out to the order of shipper and endorsed in blank — or, in other words, in negotiable form. In the case of sight drafts, these documents are normally released to importers only against payment, but when thirty-day or longer-time drafts are used, surrender of documents usually takes place solely on the strength of the importer's written acceptance on the face of the bill. In every instance the exporter must supply his bank with complete collection and settlement instructions.

The export may be financed by discount of the relative bill of exchange at the exporter's bank at time of shipment. Alternatively, the bill could be handed to the bank with instructions to collect before making settlement. Still another financing procedure is for the Canadian exporter to pledge the bill to his bank as partial or full security for a general line of credit.

Principle of Documentary Drawings

The basic principle behind documentary drawings is the fact that the seller is satisfied to start the goods on their journey before they are paid for, but he wants to be assured of payment before they actually pass into the physical possession of his customer. If the bill is drawn payable at so many days after sight or date, the buyer's written acceptance definitely establishes his obligation (but not necessarily his ability) to pay at a fixed maturity date. Apart from the exchange conversion feature, which is a serious factor in some countries, the main risk in use of document draft procedure is that the buyer may refuse or be financially unable to honour the drawing. Where the draft has been drawn at sight, dishonour usually results in expensive warehousing and other costs for the seller, pending disposal of the goods to another buyer, possibly at a substantial loss. The drawer's position in regard to non-payment at maturity of an accepted time draft is even more insecure, because the goods have already passed into the hands of the buyer and probably have been disposed of to third parties. Costly legal proceedings, followed by partial if not complete loss, are often the result.

It is, therefore, evident that Canadian exporters should be fully satisfied not only with the reliability of buyers but also that foreign exchange resources and general economic conditions in the country of import will permit prompt settlement. Reports on the credit-worthiness and general reputation of foreign firms may be obtained by airmail or cable through your own bank anywhere in Canada. Similarly, the branch of the bank you deal with has ready access to the latest foreign economic and other practical information available at the international department of its head office.

The Bank Act

The financing of Canada's exports not only covers the period between shipment of goods and final settlement from abroad but also begins at the first stages of domestic production. Under the provisions of Sections 86 to 90 of the Canadian Bank Act, the chartered banks are enabled to provide a large volume of short-term working capital to industry and commerce. The purpose is to facilitate the complete series of operations, from processing of raw material to finished product and to eventual disposal of surplus production in markets abroad. In fact, these sections of the Bank Act, which had their origin in "an Act granting additional facilities in commercial transactions" passed by the Parliament of the old Province of Canada in 1859, constitute the very backbone of our industrial production financing and, in turn, have an important bearing on the flow of our export trade.

Commercial Letters of Credit

The history of commercial letters of credit dates back to the earliest days of banking. Their origin is credited to Roman and Lombard money-changers who also are believed to have introduced the bill of exchange. While there are various definitions of letters of credit, the following one, I think, most aptly describes the purpose of the instrument: "A bank issuing a letter of credit furnishes its credit, which is both good and well known, instead of the buyer's credit, which may be good but is not so well known". The wording of definitions may differ but the basic fact remains that the establishing bank gives its own undertaking to pay to sellers stated sums of money against delivery of certain documents within a prescribed time.

Commercial or documentary letters of credit may be issued in various forms but, generally speaking, they fall into two main categories:—

IRREVOCABLE CREDITS, which constitute a binding and irrevocable obligation on the part of the establishing bank to honour drawings issued in conformity with terms of the credit. Such credits may not be cancelled or altered without the consent of all parties concerned. The Canadian bank through which the credit has been forwarded will add the following clause on the relative advice to the beneficiary:—

> "This letter is solely an advice of credit opened by the above mentioned correspondent and conveys no engagement by us."

It is the practice, however, of many Canadian exporters to require the written assurance or firm undertaking of a bank in Canada that credits issued by a foreign bank will be honoured in due course. For instance, the issuing bank abroad may not be well known to the Canadian beneficiary or perhaps the importing country has a difficult exchange position which conceivably could interfere with performance of the issuing bank's undertaking. Provided, of course, it is instructed to do so by its foreign correspondent, the Canadian advising bank then assumes complete responsibility for the credit by adding the following undertaking to its letter of advice to the beneficiary:—

> "We hereby confirm this credit and thereby undertake that any drafts drawn and accompanied by documents in order will be duly honoured upon presentation."

REVOCABLE CREDITS, otherwise known as "Authority to Pay" or "Authority to Purchase". These instruments authorize payment to the beneficiary upon presentation of draft and specified documents — subject, however, to modification or cancellation without notice to the beneficiary. Such credits serve mainly as a means of arranging payment and afford the exporter very little protection. They are used infrequently and only where sellers have implicit confidence in the buyer's ability and willingness to carry out terms of sales contracts. The wording of these credits and any relative letters of advice should include this clause:—

> "This credit is subject to revocation or modification at any time without notice to you."

Uses of Letters of Credit

The importance of commercial letters of credit and their usefulness generally in world trade warrants more detailed mention of their functions and use. First, it should be clearly understood that they deal with documents but not goods. Neither the negotiating bank in Canada nor the issuing bank abroad can accept any responsibility whatsoever for the quality or other characteristics of the underlying goods, but they must ensure only that the documents are made out strictly in accordance with the terms of the credit. It follows that the importer should satisfy himself thoroughly through his bank of the general standing and reputation of the exporter before placing the order. Second, even an irrevocable credit offers limited, if any, protection to the exporter, who is unable to meet the terms of the credit in every respect. If discrepancies occur in documents which cannot be corrected in time for delivery and the exporter furnishes the negotiating bank with a guarantee he has, in effect, automatically signed away his rights under the credit. In other words, the foreign importer if he chose could refuse to take delivery of the documents because they did not agree with his requirements as outlined in the credit. It is easy to imagine what might happen if there had been a sharp drop in the price of the goods following placement of the order.

Canada now subscribes to a code of procedure governing commercial letters of credit transactions known as the "Uniform Customs and Practice for Commercial Documentary Credits." The United States and many other countries have operated under this code for years, with Canada and most other countries in the Commonwealth adopting the code recently. Also, the National Foreign Trade Council Inc., New York, have issued a useful pamphlet containing definitions of trade terms and abbreviations.

The Foreign Exchange Risk

If the exporter sells for Canadian dollars, the exchange risk falls on the foreign importer, but if payment is to be made in the currency of the importer's country, the prudent exporter will protect himself against exchange rate fluctuations between the time of sale and of settlement. This he can do by selling a future to his bank for delivery at the approximate time the foreign funds are due for payment. An uncovered exchange position could easily cost an exporter not only his trading profit on the goods but a substantial loss besides.

Export Financing

Export credits insurance is a subject in itself but it plays such an important part in the development of Canada's export trade that it deserves special mention. Under the provisions of a policy issued by the Export Credits Insurance Corporation, an arm of the Canadian Government, the exporter is able to insure his shipments against most of the principal risks of loss. The Corporation will insure up to 85% of the contract price at a moderate premium and these facilities, when pledged to the exporter's bank, materially ease financing requirements.

Early in 1961, the chartered banks joined forces to establish the Export Finance Corporation of Canada Limited with an initial paidup capital of $10 million. The rediscount facilities of this "banker's bank" are available to the shareholder institutions for export transactions with terms up to five years insured under the Export Credits Insurance Act. Although the individual exporter continues to deal with his own bank, the latter, in turn, has ready access to the substantial resources of the Corporation in case of need. In fact, important use has already been made of the facilities of this new Corporation, which was formed by the banks in the interests of Canadian export trade.

For approved transactions covering export of capital goods calling for payment in excess of five years, the Canadian Government provides the exporter with direct financing facilities under Section 21A of the Export Credits Insurance Act.

The subject of financing naturally relates to banking, but this article would not be complete without mention of the facilities offered by private trade organizations, such as, the Canadian Manufacturers Association, and by the Canadian Government. These facilities have done much in opening up world markets for our products. Intelligent trade promotion efforts of this type, combined with sound financing by the banks, place at the disposal of Canadian traders the services of a valuable combination.

EXPORT PRICING

By Richard B. Spiro, former Vice-President, International Division, The Canadian Coleman Company, Limited.

AMONG the so-called three P's of Export —namely Product, Price and Promotion —under the present circumstances of reappearing keen competition, Pricing is of paramount importance. This subject embraces the principles of price calculation and also the method of quotation. The former is, of course, of prime importance in establishing prices which will be competitive in the foreign market, while still allowing an adequate return to the exporter in terms of contributing to the profit of his overall operation. The latter is concerned with the necessity for quoting in such a way that the overseas customer can readily calculate his landed cost and compare it with competitive offerings; in short, it makes it easy for him to buy.

Calculation of Export Prices

While export prices will necessarily bear a fairly close relationship to domestic prices, and will perhaps need adjustment in the light of prices of competitive merchandise, the theoretically correct method is to calculate prices based on the actual cost of producing, selling and shipping the goods, providing, in addition, for the coverage of general overhead expenses and an adequate net profit.

These costs may be divided into three general classifications:

(1) Direct materials and labour (at standard or normal costs applicable to the product being offered, less drawback of duties paid on imported components or raw materials).

(2) Factory overhead (which should be calculated and apportioned on the basis of the average of the plant capacity occupied in the production of goods for export).

(3) Sales and general overhead.

In every business there are many items of cost which are not especially attributable to any particular phase of the operation, but which must be covered if the business is to operate at all. In tabulating costs for export purposes, every effort should be made to eliminate those costs which do not bear any direct relation to the export operation. The examination can be made particularly searching in those businesses where export sales form only a small proportion of total sales.

The expenses of the export operation itself will include such items as: Export department salaries, travelling expenses, catalogues and promotional literature, export advertising, commissions to travellers and to representatives abroad, transportation to the agreed point of delivery (see below), packing and shipping materials and labour, legal expenses, patents and trademark fees, office supplies, postage and cables, taxes, rent, insurance, interest and exchange, provision for bad debts, etc. The tabulation of the expenses and the preparation of a budgetary Profit and Loss Statement will permit the export executive to arrive at quotations based on factory cost by indicating the percentage mark-up which must be added to factory cost to cover the expenses of the export operations and to produce the desired margin of net profit.

Fixed and Variable Costs

In the analysis of costs and expenses it will be found that certain items will be characterized as fixed charges and are independent of production or sales volume. Others vary directly and automatically with the volume of goods produced and sold, while a third variety may be described as controllable and bears a more or less direct relation to the volume of business. Examples of "fixed" charges are civic taxes, administration, rent, etc. Charges which vary in direct ratio to volume include direct labour and materials, commissions, etc. In the third category are such items as export advertising, travelling expenses, clerical costs, etc.

In a market where very keen competition is being faced, a careful examination of the relationships between these cost categories may be the means of determining whether a price can be quoted which will be competitive, or in other words, whether an export order can be obtained at all. In many organizations, export business represents only a comparatively small percentage of the total turnover and, in such cases, it may be argued that, where necessary, an export price which covers the variable and controllable export costs but disregards all or a portion of the fixed charges will still be profitable from the point of view of the overall operation. In such an organization, it may be assumed that the fixed expenses will be the same whether or not this export business is added to the domestic business. The export order, so obtained, is therefore a means of employing plant capacity, which may not otherwise be profitably engaged, and to absorb a portion, though not by domestic standards its full share, of the fixed expenses of the business.

If, however, export business represents more than, say, 15% to 20% of the total turnover, it may be clearly impossible to charge the whole of the fixed expenses of the organization against that part of the production which is sold in the domestic market, as this may price these products out of the domestic market.

Price Quotations and Foreign Trade Terms

A significant factor in the quotation of prices is the cost of transporting the goods to the point of delivery indicated in the sales contract. This point is designated by certain internationally accepted "foreign trade terms."

The foreign trade terms indicate the geographic point in the line of connection between seller and buyer up to which the seller pays all transportation and insurance costs (or in other words, includes transportation and insurance costs in his quotation) and from which point onwards the buyer pays all transportation or insurance costs (or in other words, from which point onwards the seller adds transportation and insurance costs to his quotation in case he, acting on behalf of the buyer, prepays these expenses). The foreign trade terms further define in the line of connection between seller and buyer the point of delivery, which means the point up to which the seller holds title to the goods and is therefore responsible for them as far as damages, losses, etc., are concerned and where the title then passes from the seller to the buyer, who from this point onwards is responsible for any losses or damages.

As one proceeds along this line of connection from the seller to the buyer, it will progressively become easier for the buyer to calculate his landed costs. If one quotes, for instance, "F.O.B. Factory", which is often called "ex works", then the buyer, in order to arrive at his landed costs, would not only have to figure out his import Customs Duty, the landing charges in his own port of arrival, the ocean freight and marine insurance, but he would also have to know the inland transport in the country of supply such as for instance, the cost of transporting the merchandise from Winnipeg to Montreal; it is quite clear that it would be difficult for the importer in a faraway country to obtain information on the cost of inland rail transport in Canada, which, in the case of an "F.O.B. Factory" or "ex works" quotation would be necessary to permit him to figure out his landed costs. If we quote "F.A.S. Vessel" (Free Along Side) or "F.O.B. Vessel" (Free on Board Vessel) at a named Port of Sailing, then, in order to arrive at his landed costs, he would only have to know the ocean freight rate, marine insurance rate and the actual landing costs and Customs Duties which occur in his own country.

With competition becoming keener all the time and with exporters in other countries used to making it easy for their overseas customers to figure out their landed costs, it has become necessary to proceed in one's quotations along this line of connection between seller and buyer to points closer to the buyer, and to quote prices for delivery at the port of destination such as for instance: C & F (Cost and Freight, which would only leave to the buyer to figure out and pay the marine insurance premium); or: C.I.F. (which means Cost, Insurance excluding war risk insurance, and Freight); or: C.I.F. & C. (which with the last letter "C" includes also the commission which the buyer may possibly pay to a buying house or broker whom he may employ in the country of supply); or, the quotation may even be: C.I.F.C. & I. (which with the last letter "I" indicates that also bank interest, in the case of extended credit terms, is included in the quotation and will not have to be added to the quoted price by the buyer).

Foreign Trade Terms—Definitions

In an effort to define in a uniform manner certain well known terms generally used in making price quotations, there has been developed in various countries a set of rules or definitions which have been adopted by certain trade organizations and others setting out in some detail the obligations of seller and buyer attaching to the particular terms. In the United States the National Foreign Trade Council Incorporated, the National Council of American Importers Incorporated, and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America on July 30, 1941, through a joint committee, approved of what are known as "Revised American Foreign Trade Definitions —1941." These follow in general, although not in detail, the International Rules for the Interpretation of Trade Terms — generally known as "Incoterms, 1953," defined by the International Chamber of Commerce. It should be understood that the use of such rules is optional and that the approval of the particular rules referred to by designated trade bodies does not lend to them the force of law. Nevertheless, where a price quotation in accordance with these definitions and a contract of sale is concluded with a statement that the price is subject to these definitions, it would have considerable force in determining what is understood by the parties to the contract in respect to such price quotation.

While specific reference has been made to the "Revised American Foreign Trade Definitions—1941" and to "Incoterms 1953," it is essential to bear in mind, as previously pointed out, that foreign trade definitions have been issued by organizations in various parts of the world and the courts of different countries have interpreted these definitions in different ways. To reduce the opportunities for misunderstanding to a minimum, therefore, it is fundamental that there be agreement between seller and buyer as to what is actually meant when a price quotation is made. A buyer in a foreign country who is familiar with definitions endorsed by an organization in the foreign country and the court decisions interpreting such definitions, on receiving a price quotation from a seller in Canada is constrained to construe it in the light of such definitions unless the quotation is clarified by a stipulation as to what definitions apply in making the price quotation.

In addition to the commonly used terms, there are many others, some of which are found in particular trades only. Where definitions are not formally approved and adopted by trade organizations for general use, it is necessary that a seller and buyer should specify exactly what is understood in respect thereto, indicating the obligations of both parties so that there may be no misunderstanding. In respect to "C.I.F." contracts, it further should be pointed out that the International Law Association adopted certain rules relating thereto in 1928 which, as later modified in 1931, are known as the "Warsaw-Oxford Rules."

An extensive list of technical abbreviations used in foreign trade and exchange transactions is given in Appendix II.

SHIPPING AND MARINE INSURANCE

In the conduct of export trade it is essential that meticulous care be exercised in understanding and complying with the requirements of the buyer and the importing country, as well as Canadian Government regulations where they apply. Mistakes and misunderstandings can be costly, and, because of the distances involved, can give rise to lengthy delays. This is more fully developed in the comments appearing under the caption "Documentation".

It is equally important that careful consideration be given to the packing of the goods. Packing must be strong enough to withstand the stresses to which such shipments are exposed in the numerous handlings and stowage in the ship's hold, and thus protect the contents against physical and chemical damage, as well as against pilferage, but at the same time should be designed so as not to unnecessarily increase the cost, including freight cost. Containerization, whereby the goods are enclosed in a transferable box, often owned by the carrier, which when emptied is utilized further in transportation, is a packaging mode that is receiving greater attention. The marking of the packages or pieces should be durable in character and should be such as to properly identify and aid in the carriage of the shipment to its destination.

Care should also be exercised in the selection of the transportation routing, and in properly describing the goods in the bill of lading to assure that the most favourable ocean rate may be applied.

There are frequent year-round sailings from Canadian Eastern and Western Seaboard ports to most foreign countries. There are also direct sailings from a number of ports on the St. Lawrence River and Great Lakes to many overseas ports during the season of St. Lawrence-Great Lakes navigation, roughly from the middle of April to the end of November.

Ocean carriers enjoy immunity from liability for loss or damage caused by perils of the seas and a wide range of risks under the statutes of many maritime countries and the conditions of carriage embodied in the ocean bill of lading. Marine insurance, which is designed to afford protection to those having an interest in the goods, against perils from which the ocean carrier is relieved from liability is, therefore, an indispensable adjunct of ocean commerce. Cargo coverage is a specialized field which can not be described here except in a very cursory manner. There are three main types of cargo coverage available—F.P.A. (Free of Particular Average); W.P.A. (With Particular Average); and "All Risks" (i.e. all physical loss or damage from external causes), together with many variations of these three main forms of coverage which are employed in insuring particular cargoes. It is important for the foreign trader to realize that a marine insurance policy is a valued policy and that the value declared should be of such amount that in the event of a casualty, the assured will be fully reimbursed for the losses sustained. War risks and the inclusion of coverage against losses resulting from strikes, riots and civil commotion are not embraced in a marine policy but may be added thereto by endorsement or issuance of a separate policy. If it is desired to have insurance attach from time the shipment leaves the exporter's factory to the time of its arrival at the premises of the consignee, this may be arranged by the addition of "Marine Extension Clauses" to the policy so as to afford protection from "warehouse to warehouse".

Export shipments may be insured under a specific policy issued for a particular shipment, or an exporter may arrange for a floating policy to cover all his shipments properly declared through a copy of the individual insurance certificate sent to the Insurance Company. Various other clauses are available to meet the particular requirements of the assured, and it is consequently necessary that the underwriter have full knowledge of the insurance buyer's marketing practices and trading methods in order that a marine policy may be "tailor made" to afford satisfactory protection. This usually can be arranged whether the insurance buyer's interest is of a direct or contingent nature. The exporter should accordingly consult a reliable marine insurance broker in order to obtain a policy which best suits his particular needs and the requirements of his customer abroad.

In recent years there has been a considerable expansion in international air freight services which has been stimulated by technological advancement particularly apparent in such areas as carrying capacity, speed, handling and terminal services. This mode of carriage has succeeded in attracting progressively larger volumes of cargo in the development of overseas markets for products which, if dependent upon older surface means of transport, would probably never have materialized. This mode of expedited transportation is especially appealing to exporters of valuable or seasonal merchandise, perishable products, repair parts and traffic of an emergency nature requiring fast despatch, but its attractions apply to an ever increasing range of other products. While air freight charges are normally much higher than charged by surface carriers for the preponderance of overseas traffic, the freight in many cases is only one factor to be considered in determining the over-all distribution costs. Frequently there are offsetting advantages in the use of this mode of carriage, such as less expensive packing, reduced inventory charges, lower insurance costs and other less tangible benefits which may make it profitable to use air cargo service.

The liability of the air carriers is limited in amount and to the negligence of itself, its servants, agents and employees, acting within the scope of their authority. All risk insurance may be arranged through the carrier or an insurance company.

DOCUMENTATION

In preparing the documentation for export shipments there are two principal considerations to be borne in mind, accuracy and time. In all aspects of export trade it is essential that care be taken in meticulously meeting the requirements of the buyer and the regulations of the importing country. Errors and irregularities may result in heavy fines or the assessment of excessive rates of duty in the importing country. In addition to the requirements of the country of destination the exporter should take care to ensure that the documents provided are in accordance with the terms of the letter of credit, where payment is being made by this means. In some instances documents that are not required by the customs authority of the importing country are specified in the letter of credit and if they are not correctly provided it may be difficult or impossible for the exporter to receive payment. The second consideration is that ample time should be allowed for the preparation of documents prior to the required date of shipment. Often printed forms have to be secured from consulates, completed and submitted to the consulate for visé and considerable delays can result should the consul not be available when the documents are submitted or if, for example, they are presented on a national holiday of the consul's country.

There are several documents required for most overseas shipments, each of which is a study in itself:

(a) Ocean Bill of Lading—which may be a Straight Bill authorizing delivery of the goods to the named consignee, or an Order Bill which requires presentation of a negotiable original in order to claim the shipment (may require legalization by the Consul of the country to which the goods are consigned);

In Air Cargo the Air Waybill is the instrument equivalent to the bill of lading.

(b) The Commercial Invoice (may require legalization by the Consul of the importing country, and may also require certification as to origin and value of the goods by a competent authority such as the Canadian Manufacturers' Association);

(c) The Insurance Policy or Certificate;

(d) A draft or Bill of Exchange whose tenor reflects the terms of payment agreed between exporter and buyer;

(e) Customs Invoice or Certificate of Origin (Commonwealth countries);

(f) Consular Invoice and/or Certificate of Origin (for non-Commonwealth countries) which may be subject to certification by the Consul of the country concerned (many non-Commonwealth countries require, in addition, an endorsation or certificate as to origin and value of the goods, signed by a competent authority such as the Canadian Manufacturers' Association);

(g) Packing list;

(h) Import License and/or Exchange Permit must, in the case of certain countries, be obtained from the importer and presented when applying for consular visa of customs documents. In the case of some countries it is sufficient if the number of the import license is indicated on all documents.

(i) As far as Canadian Government regulations are concerned, Export Entry Form B-13 is to be furnished for all commercial shipments and an Export Permit may be required depending upon the nature of the goods and the country of ultimate destination.

Where imported materials or parts are used in, wrought into, attached to, or consumed in the manufacture of articles in Canada, and such articles are subsequently exported, the Canadian Government allows a drawback of 99% of all duties and taxes paid on such imported materials or parts. The claim form is known as K-32 and, if the importer of the materials or parts is not the manufacturer claiming the drawback, it will be necessary for the latter to secure from the Canadian importer a certificate of importation and sale. There are certain documents that have to be presented with the claim for drawback, such as the export invoice and the export entry form. An extra copy of the latter (Form B-13) should be completed and handed to the transportation company or parcel post authorities along with the other copies, with a note thereon requesting that the Collector of Customs (at the last port from which the goods leave Canada) stamp, sign and return it to the exporter for export drawback purposes.

In all these matters, the exporter who is unfamiliar with the procedure or with the requirements of the market to which he is shipping should consult the Department of Trade and Commerce, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and other expert advisers, and he may find it advisable to engage the services of a competent international freight forwarder. The Tariff Department of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association can supply members with summaries of the customs documentation requirements of any country, and time should be allowed to study these requirements well in advance of making a shipment.

FOREIGN LICENSING AGREEMENTS

For a variety of reasons arising from the growing industrialization of overseas markets and the increasing pressure of competition from third countries, a situation may be faced where the continuing export of finished goods becomes unprofitable. In these circumstances, the manufacturer may consider the desirability of starting a manufacturing operation abroad, perhaps through a foreign license agreement. Such an arrangement may produce a number of worthwhile results, such as a tactical advantage in the market concerned and in adjoining markets, the monetary return from the export of "know how", the mutual exchange of technical information with the licensee, and the possibility of a continued or increasing volume of exports of components. The operation of a foreign licensing programme involves a much lower capital commitment than direct investment in manufacturing facilities abroad, but there is correspondingly less control over the operation. Any such undertaking requires a most careful investigation and study, and the difficulties should not be under-estimated.

BIBLIOGRAPHY OF EXPORT REFERENCES

An exporter will find the accumulation of a small basic reference library an invaluable aid in the operation of an export department. In addition, a loose-leaf system of references arranged alphabetically by countries will enable the export manager to keep current information on hand relating to the markets of specific interest to the company, with particular reference to its own products. Under each country the documentation requirements should be set out according to the various general divisions, namely: ocean freight, parcel post, rail, air parcel post, air cargo and express. Under these in turn should be listed the names of the customs documents and the data required for each. If possible, typical forms should be included in the loose-leaf book and, by way of example, information should be typed in under the various columns. Space should be reserved for amendments and from time to time as required the information should be reconsolidated. The date the information is compiled should be noted as well as the date of any amendments and their source. In this way the exporter will have a date to check from for documents in future shipments.

The following is a list of basic reference works which can find a useful place in any export department.

I. Surveys of Export Procedures—

(a) "Review of Export and Import Procedures", The Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

An exposition of the basic aspects of exporting including customs and other documents for ocean freight and rail shipments, together with an outline of the customs laws and regulations relating to imports into Canada.

(b) "The Techniques of Export Trade". Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa. Contains a detailed survey of export procedures and is obtainable from the Queen's Printer and Comptroller of Stationery, Ottawa. Price $1.00.

(c) Publications obtainable from Trade Publicity Branch, Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa. "Trade & Commerce, at your Service", "Selling Abroad —How to Start", "Canada Exhibits Abroad." No charge.

(d) "Financing Foreign Trade", The Royal Bank of Canada, Montreal. Contains details of import and export finance and the theory and practice of foreign exchange. No charge.

(e) "Pricing for Export", The Canadian Manufacturers' Association. The basic elements of export pricing with suggestions to aid in making preliminary calculations; examples given for export to the United States and overseas markets. No charge.

(f) "Foreign Trade Handbook", Canadian Bank of Commerce, Toronto. Contains conversion tables and other data of similar nature. No charge.

(g) "Dictionary of Foreign Trade", Prentice-Hall, Inc., New York City. Contains the definitions of foreign trade terms, usages, practices, procedures, and abbreviations alphabetically arranged for handy reference.

(h) "Understanding Export", The Canadian Manufacturers' Association. Contains articles on foreign trade quotations and export pricing. Price 50 cents.

(i) "Production Sharing Handbook," Department of Defence Production, Ottawa. Detailed explanation of the U. S. defence markets and selling methods, legislation and regulations. No charge.

II. Detailed Information on Customs Documents—

(a) "Exporters Encyclopaedia" (Annual), Thomas Ashwell & Co., Inc., 20 Vesey Street, New York City. Contains information on shipments for all countries with data on ports and trade centres, reference tables, insurance, export terms and practice, trademarks, customs procedures, weights and packing hints, and freight forwarders. Note that information is given from a United States point of view; other sources should also be consulted, especially in dealing with customs documentation, for certificates of origin and their visés for shipments emanating from Canada including documentation requirements for the Commonwealth. Price $40.00.

(b) "Exporters Year Book" (Annual). "Syren and Shipping Limited, 7-17 Jewry Street, London, E.C.3., England. Arranged alphabetically by countries and contains basic information similar to that in the "Exporters Encyclopaedia" but on a much reduced scale. Especially useful for Commonwealth countries. Price 60/-.

(c) Leaflets issued by the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa. Contain information on customs documents, commercial invoices, consular invoices, certificates of origin, bills of lading, import control, special certificates and permits, consular legalization, consular fees, labelling and marking, food and drug regulations, parcel post, air cargo, samples, fines and penalties, tariffs, and consuls in Canada for individual countries. Separate leaflets summarize information for areas, e.g., Latin America, Europe, Middle East. No charge.

(d) Leaflets issued by the United States Department of Commerce.

"Overseas Business Reports". Country by country reports include basic economic information on investment and establishment of businesses, exchange controls, import licensing, tariff regulations, customs documentation, summarized statistical data on foreign trade. Order from Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D.C. Annual subscription $18. Each report 15c.

GOVERNMENT EXPORT SERVICES

Canadian firms and individuals interested in foreign trade may obtain guidance and assistance from the Department of Trade and Commerce, including its corps of trade commissioners in sixty-five capitals and commercial centres around the world. The primary purpose of its officers is to explore new avenues to the markets of all countries, and to maintain the highways of trade in constant repair.

Commodity officers in Ottawa familiarize themselves with the operations of firms all across Canada and the nature of their products. Inquiries from Canadian trade commissioners abroad or other sources are channelled to Canadian firms able to meet the demand, along with available information concerning the prospective purchaser. They often urge participation in trade fairs or specialized trade shows, where it is believed the provision of a Canadian display will create a better understanding of products that can be sold in the country concerned on the basis of price, quality, continuity of supply and service.

It is desirable that new firms with an export potential should communicate with the Department, and furnish pertinent information relating to their operations and products, thereby enabling the commodity officer to determine their ability to compete in the foreign field. They are also urged to take part in trade fairs in which the Department plans to participate.

Other officers are engaged in trade and tariff negotiations, in an effort to create the most favourable atmosphere in which commercial transactions may be conducted. Close contacts are maintained with industry, with a view to the utilization of excess manufacturing capacity, the establishment of branch plants and the development of new products. Promotional literature is prepared, primarily for distribution at international trade fairs, and a wide range of information is made available to businessmen interested in foreign trade.

Commercial intelligence, which includes reviews of economic conditions in many lands, trade and tariff regulations, commodity requirements and industrial developments, is made available in Foreign Trade. This illustrated fortnightly magazine is published by the Department for the information of exporters and importers. A list of Canadian trade commissioners, with their addresses, is published once a month, while lists of commercial representatives of other countries in Canada appear at periodic intervals, together with lists of senior personnel at head office in Ottawa to whom inquiries can be directed.

Most of the articles in this magazine are written by trade commissioners in the field who are familiar with markets in their respective territories and are well known in the principal business communities. Changes in import controls and other regulations are recorded, and trade notes that might suggest profitable business are reproduced at regular intervals.

The itineraries of trade commissioners on tour in Canada are published in Foreign Trade, in order that exporters and prospective exporters may communicate with them when in their immediate vicinity.

The subscription to Foreign Trade is $5.00 a year in Canada and $7.00 abroad. Orders may be placed with the Queen's Printer, Government Printing Bureau, Ottawa.

The Department's Trade Fairs Abroad Division co-ordinates participation in international trade fairs in other countries in order that the fullest advantage may be derived from the promotional effort of the Department, in co-operation with Canadian firms for whose products a market can be developed in the countries concerned.

Businessmen requiring guidance in their foreign trade transactions may communicate with trade commissioners, commodity officers with specialized knowledge of their particular products, tariff experts or other officers of the Department. One or more branches may be required to provide the necessary assistance in solving particular problems, and in securing a market for Canadian products. Inquiries directed to the Department or to an individual are funnelled to the branch best qualified to provide the desired service.

TRADE COMMISSIONER SERVICE

The Trade Commissioner Service, with headquarters at Ottawa, has offices under trade commissioners in many overseas countries. A director, aided by an executive director and two assistant directors, has charge of the work of the Service at home and abroad.

There are 65 trade offices abroad, located in most of the strategic commercial centres of the world. In addition to the trade commissioner, many offices have one or more assistant trade commissioners, depending upon the importance of the post to Canadian trade. In those centres where Canada maintains a diplomatic mission, the trade commissioner is attached to the mission as a commercial diplomatic officer and is given the title of Minister (Commercial), Minister Counsellor (Economic), Commercial Counsellor, Commercial Secretary or Assistant Commercial Secretary, according to his rank. When attached to a consulate, he carries the title Consul-General, Deputy Consul-General (Commercial), Consul (Commercial), or Vice-Consul (Commercial), according to his rank and whether it is a consulate or consulate-general.

The duties of the trade commissioner are to introduce Canadian exporters and importers to the corresponding businessmen of other countries; to study conditions and needs of the territories where they are located; to obtain and forward inquiries for Canadian goods to headquarters at Ottawa and to Canadian exporters; to report on important requirements in their territories and to make direct inquiries or conduct preliminary surveys regarding the potential market for any product, reporting the exact kinds of goods wanted, competition to be met, methods of packing, shipping or billing, tariffs and trade regulations affecting these goods, etc.

Trade commissioners assist Canadian importers and manufacturers who desire advice on the present and prospective supply of goods and materials available in various countries, best methods of purchase, methods of approach to overseas suppliers, prices, specifications, packing, etc.

Trade developments the world over are reported by trade commissioners to the Department at Ottawa, and this information is available to all Canadian exporters and importers. They also prepare periodic reports on trade, business and financial conditions, markets for particular commodities, materials available for supply for import into Canada, and other related subjects for publication in Foreign Trade or in pamphlet form.

Trade Commissioners' Tours

The periodic return of trade commissioners for official tours of Canada is one of the most important factors in effecting practical co-operation between Canadian firms interested in foreign trade and businessmen in other countries. The trade commissioner can, during the course of his tour, discuss export and import problems with firms interested in exporting to, or importing from, his territory. The Department brings back the trade commissioners by rotation, subject to the exigencies of trading conditions and of the Service generally. Well in advance of their scheduled arrival in Canada, individual exporters and importers are circularized for the purpose of arranging appointments. In addition, the department publishes a notice in Foreign Trade inviting firms who may be interested in any particular territory to state whether an interview is desired. The names of such firms, together with those with whom the trade commissioner has been in communication, form the basis of the itinerary. Businessmen wishing to interview any trade commissioner on tour may do so by communicating in advance with the Trade Commissioner Service or with the Canadian Manufacturers' Association or the local Chamber of Commerce.

Assistance Available from Canadian Trade Commissioners

Canadian exporters can obtain assistance and information from branches and divisions of the Department of Trade and Commerce, including officers of the Trade Commissioner Service in the posts abroad. Similar guidance is available to overseas traders interested in the development of closer commercial relations with this country.

In addition to the information which Canadian trade commissioners can provide direct, the Department of Trade and Commerce maintains a number of services in Ottawa which will prove helpful to prospective exporters. Preliminary inquiries should be submitted to the Commodities Branch or the Agriculture and Fisheries Branch, when related to specific products, and to the appropriate geographical division of the Office of Trade Relations and Trade Policy, when dealing with tariffs, trade restrictions, licensing, etc. Other departmental arms which can render special services are the Trade Services Branch and the Trade Publicity Branch.

Canadian exporters should ask to be listed in the Exporter's Directory, which is maintained by the Trade Services Branch and supplied to Canadian trade commissioners throughout the world.

A list of Canadian trade commissioners and their respective territories is published periodically in Foreign Trade. The specific information obtainable from Canadian trade commissioners is listed below for the convenience of exporters.

The duties of the trade commissioners bring them into daily contact with the Government, with importers, exporters, and the general business community of those countries to which they are accredited. They know the requirements, the business methods and the problems of the foreign market. This practical knowledge is available for exporters to draw on.

The following topics suggest some of the ways in which the trade commissioner can help promote the sale of Canadian goods abroad.

Assessing a New Foreign Market:

If a Canadian firm is considering a foreign market for the first time, the trade commissioner can supply information on the following:

Market Requirements:

(a) whether a particular commodity, or one similar to it, is in use in the area;
(b) used by whom, and for what purpose;
(c) whether the country's requirements are met by local production, by imports, or by both;
(d) if a commodity is not in use, the probable reason why not, the possibilities of developing a market for it, and how this might be done.

Import Trade:

(a) size of the import market;
(b) sources of imports;
(c) the pattern of imports, and prospects for the future;
(d) how the import trade is managed — by wholesalers, commission agents, etc.

Tariff and Trade Regulations:

(a) customs classifications;
(b) rates of duty;
(c) comparability of tariff treatment Canada receives with that of competing countries;

(d) nature of import and exchange controls.

Competition in the Market:

(a) who the competitors are;

(b) the range of their products;

(c) how long competing products have been established in the market;

(d) the status of local representatives of foreign firms, and any special assistance they receive from their principals;

(e) prevailing prices and suppliers' terms of credit.

General:

(a) how to quote in the market;

(b) available banking, shipping, storage, and brokerage facilities;

(c) prevailing economic conditions and their bearing on marketing possibilities;

(d) business conditions as they affect a principal industry if such industry represents a prime consumer in the area.

Establishing a New Exporter in the Market:

If the Canadian exporter decides that prospects are encouraging, the trade commissioner can assist the firm in establishing itself in a new market in the following ways:

(a) by selecting several firms suitable as agents, introducing the Canadian firm's commodity lines to them, and determining their interest in taking on the representation;

(b) by placing the Canadian supplier in direct contact with those firms that express an interest in further discussions on the matter of representation;

(c) by supplying credit and other information on the local firms to assist the Canadian company in deciding which of these would be the most appropriate contact. Normally, the trade commissioner will include his own recommendation at this time.

(d) If the trade commissioner considers it advisable, he will encourage a representative of the Canadian firm to visit the market and, in order to make such a visit as profitable as possible, is prepared to:

— arrange necessary appointments,

— make reservations for accommodation,

— receive and care for the visitor's mail and other messages,

— help out with any interpreting that is required, or if this is not possible from his own office, recommend suitable alternative arrangements.

— recommend legal counsel or any other technical type of assistance required for negotiation purposes,

— be available for any explanation or additional information required.

Continuing Assistance:

Once a Canadian firm is established and goods are moving into the market the trade commissioner can continue to be of assistance in the following ways:

(a) by maintaining close contact with and encouraging the new agent;

(b) by interceding on behalf of the exporters with local authorities if problems arise as a result of exchange, import, or other trade controls;

(c) by making recommendations leading to the settlement of trade disputes;

(d) although the trade commissioner cannot be considered in any sense of the word as a debt collector, he is always prepared to give guidance in respect to the recovery of overdue accounts;

(e) by using his knowledge and the contacts he has developed to cut red tape, smooth out difficulties and help keep Canadian trade moving.

Co-operation by the Exporter:

The Canadian exporter can co-operate with the trade commissioner in many ways. When making inquiries concerning a potential market

DO:

(a) Provide a short history of the company, particularly if new to the market or to the trade commissioner.

(b) Specifically mention whether the firm is a manufacturer, export agent, jobber, etc.

(c) Indicate if the company is presently exporting, and if so to what markets.

(d) Give details of the methods of distribution normally used in other markets.

(e) Advise if the firm has ever sold to the market under study, if there were previous agents in the territory, if these connections still exist, and what their relationship would be with the fresh contacts sought.

(f) Furnish catalogues supplemented by sufficient information to provide the following minimum of detail on the product:

- — description and physical characteristics,
- — trade name,
- — qualities, grades and sizes the product comes in,
- — minimum quantities shipped for export,
- — export packaging,
- — production and delivery schedule,
- — any specific features or selling points,
- — terms of payment normally required,
- — prices, C.I.F., principal port of entry in the foreign market, or as otherwise recommended by the trade commissioner.

(g) Follow up market research by personal attention and visits to the area.

There are two "Don'ts" to add in connection with the latter point. When a personal visit to the market is planned

DON'T:

(1) Forget to tell the trade commissioner well in advance that you are coming, the objective of your visit, and what you would like him to do before you arrive.

(2) Cut your visit so short that it loses its practical advantages.

COMMODITIES BRANCH

The principal role of the Commodities Branch is to maintain liaison with Canadian manufacturers and the export community. The purpose of this is to enable the Branch to advise regarding business opportunities abroad, and to supply information to trade commissioners concerning interests of Canadian exporters. These functions are carried out by commodity officers, specialists in commodity trade, who are arranged in various divisions that represent the major industry groups. These are: Appliances and Commercial Machinery Division, Chemicals Division, Engineering and Equipment Division, Forest Products Division, Metals and Minerals Division and Textiles and Consumer Goods Division.

In the field of trade promotion, it is the duty of officers of the Branch to ensure that trading opportunities brought to light by the Department's widespread activities are made known to Canadian business, and that exporters are aware of the services the Department has to offer. Commodity officers are called upon for a variety of specialized trade promotion efforts. These extend from plant visits and interviews, preparation of trade studies and market surveys, to making arrangements for the display of goods abroad and the introduction of Canadian products into new markets.

The trade promotion work of the Branch begins at the point of finding Canadian products on which to concentrate promotional efforts. Great emphasis is placed on the discovery of products which might be exported or exported in greater volume. When such products are discovered, detailed reports are sent to trade commissioners throughout the world to encourage market research and promotion.

The sale of certain products in export markets is facilitated through their display in fairs and exhibitions abroad. This particularly applies to fully manufactured goods. The Commodities Branch, working in co-operation with the Canadian Government Exhibition Commission, is at times able to arrange for a trial presentation of Canadian products in overseas trade fairs and in the United States market. Assistance and information are also available to Canadian exporters who wish to display goods in U. S. trade shows.

AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES BRANCH

The Agriculture and Fisheries Branch consists of the Grain Division, the Livestock and Animal Products Division, the Plant Products Division and the Fisheries Division. It is concerned with the promotion of trade in agricultural and fisheries products. This includes the planning and co-ordination of promotional activities, as well as programming, analysing and disseminating information on foreign agriculture and fisheries.

The Grain Division is responsible for liaison between the Canadian Wheat Board and the Department of Trade and Commerce and of Agriculture, while the other divisions maintain close contact with the Departments of Agriculture and Fisheries on matters pertaining to production and availability of supplies. All four divisions are in constant touch with the trade in relation to trade promotion.

The Branch works closely with the Trade Commissioner Service, which includes a number of officers with training in agriculture and fisheries, situated in countries which are either important markets for Canadian agricultural or fisheries products, or with which Canada competes for world markets. These officers supply information dealing with various aspects of agriculture or fisheries in those countries. This material, which is augmented by similar information from other members of the Trade Commissioner Service, is reviewed and analysed by the Branch and made available to appropriate government departments and boards, as well as associations and others who may be interested.

OFFICE OF TRADE RELATIONS AND TRADE POLICY

The Office of Trade Relations and Trade Policy—formerly the International Trade Relations Branch—has major responsibilities in the development and conduct of Canada's trade and commercial relations with other countries. In addition to participation in trade and tariff negotiations, the Office provides immediate and direct service to Canadian exporters through initiating consultation with other governments on particular trade problems and through supplying detailed and up-to-date information on foreign tariffs, import and exchange controls and other foreign regulations and restrictions affecting export sales of their products.

The office of Trade Relations and Trade Policy includes a Commodity Trade Policies Division; an International Organizations Division; an Export Financing and External Aid Division; a General Relations and Special Projects Division; and five area divisions, as follows: United States; Commonwealth; European; Asia and Middle East; and Latin America. The Area Chief is responsible for coordinating the work of trade commissioners in his area. He is also responsible for general information and inquiries regarding trade in his area and should, whenever possible, be consulted by Canadian businessmen before travelling abroad.

The Office follows closely commercial and economic developments at home and abroad to enable views to be formulated in the interests of Canadian trade. In respect of trade and tariff negotiations detailed preparatory work is carried out through trade analysis and in consultation with trading interests with a view to expanding export opportunities for Canadian products. This preparatory work is followed through in the direct process of negotiation with other countries. Close attention is paid to the conduct of Canada's trade with particular reference to Canada's rights and obligations under international agreements and arrangements. When Canadian trading interests are adversely affected or threatened by actions of other countries appropriate remedial action is initiated. Such action includes efforts to find practical solutions to particular tariff problems, to obtain the relaxation of quantitative restrictions and, in general, to work for the removal of barriers to Canadian exports to other countries.

To assist Canadian firms in their export trade, the Office maintains complete and up-to-date information on customs regulations and tariffs, import and exchange controls, documentation requirements, sanitary marking and labelling regulations, and other regulations and requirements of other countries directly affecting trade. Details of these regulations are supplied on request. New measures in this field are publicized through the Department's official publication, Foreign Trade, and by bulletins.

TRADE PUBLICITY BRANCH

The function of the Trade Publicity Branch is, in co-operation with other branches of the Department, to stimulate the sale of Canadian commodities in other lands. It is responsible for the preparation of trade promotional literature for distribution at international trade fairs and, through trade commissioners, to businessmen in their respective territories. Other literature is made available for use by the press in other lands. Advertising in foreign trade publications, in support of promotional campaigns for groups of commodities and Canada's participation in trade fairs, is also the responsibility of this Branch.

It acquaints Canadian businessmen in particular, and the public in general, with the many services obtainable from the Department, at home and abroad. It also aims to stimulate in Canada a greater appreciation of the importance of export trade, and to cultivate an informed approach to foreign trade transactions. Foreign businessmen are urged to consider Canada as a possible source of supply for goods required by them, and as a market for their own commodities.

The principal media through which information is made available to Canadian businessmen are news releases issued by the Department, and Foreign Trade, in which reports from trade commissioners on market and economic conditions in their respective territories, articles by commodity officers and other personnel of the department, and a wealth of commercial intelligence are published.

TRADE FAIRS AND MISSIONS BRANCH

The Trade Fairs and Missions Branch was established in 1962 to co-ordinate the activities of the various branches in the Department participating in the trade fairs and trade missions programs. The Branch consists of two divisions, the Trade Fairs Abroad Division and the Trade Missions Division.

The Trade Fairs Abroad Division was created several years ago, and is very active. It compiles recommendations and information from all sources on trade fairs in other countries, in which Canada might participate. Upwards of a hundred such fairs are examined each year in the light of their value to the Department and its external trade promotion program.

When the program has been approved, a working committee is set up in the Department for each fair, consisting of representatives of the trade promotion branches of the Department.

The Trade Missions Division has been created to plan and put into effect the program of trade missions, designed to develop markets abroad.

These trade missions comprise small groups of businessmen, who are accompanied by a departmental official, usually a commodity officer who has taken on much of the work of organization and who travels with the mission as secretary. Normally, invitations to participate in a trade mission are extended only to industrialists who are regarded as competent, each in his own field, to make market surveys and to report back to the Department and to their respective industries. Missions are sent to markets rather than to countries; a market might include several countries or only part of one country.

The Trade Missions Division also co-ordinates arrangements for incoming missions. These are normally small groups of three or four overseas buyers and sometimes government officials, who are brought to Canada and taken on a tour that enables them to study the production of commodities in which they are interested, and to reassure themselves as to Canadian quality and standards.

TRADE SERVICES BRANCH

The Trade Services Branch was established in January 1962 to provide for the separate administration of various trade-supporting services that were previously handled in other branches of the Department. Its principal functions are:

(a) To undertake studies of the structure of freight tariffs, established by the various ocean shipping conferences and other carriers, and their influence on Canadian exports. It will also follow developments in the transportation industry relating to containerization and packaging.

(b) To participate in the Canadian Port Committee, the St. Lawrence Seaway Joint Tolls Advisory Board and the Committee on Pacific Coast Transportation.

(c) To participate in the Interdepartmental Committee on Telecommunications Policy and the Interdepartmental Committee on Civil Aviation.

(d) To administer the regional offices of the Department, and to maintain through those offices close liaison with the provincial departments of trade and industry, with manufacturers and other commercial interests.

(e) To administer the Export and Import Permits Act, and to provide firms seeking related information with rapid service. It will also participate in international conferences on export control matters and strategic control policy, as this effects changes in the International Strategic Control lists.

(f) To maintain liaison with the Canadian Maritime Commission, the National Harbours Board, the Department of Transport, the Air Transport Board and the Board of Transport Commissioners.

(g) To maintain the Department's confidential trade directories, for use by Canadian trade commissioners throughout the world.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT EXHIBITION COMMISSION

The Canadian Government Exhibition Commission is responsible for the planning, organization and administration of all Canadian exhibits in fairs and exhibitions abroad, in which the Canadian Government participates. In addition, the Commission advises private exhibitors and their agents on the best means of displaying Canadian products at overseas fairs. It is also responsible for international fairs and exhibitions held in Canada, financed and sponsored by the Federal Government.

EXPORT CREDITS INSURANCE CORPORATION

This Crown Corporation was established by Act of Parliament in 1944. Administered by a Board of Directors, including the Deputy Minister of Trade and Commerce and the Deputy Minister of Finance, the Corporation insures exporters against non-payment by foreign buyers due to some of the major risks of loss involved in foreign trade. The Head Office of the Corporation is in Ottawa and branch offices are maintained in Montreal and Toronto. It is represented in Vancouver, Winnipeg and Halifax by officials of the Department of Trade and Commerce. An Advisory Council, consisting of members from all parts of Canada representing the services of banking, manufacturing industries, and the primary industries of farming, fishing, lumbering and mining, meets from time to time with the Directors and Officers to discuss the Corporation's operations and to advise on policy matters.

The insurance is available under three main classifications:

(a) General Commodities sold on short credit terms which are usual for the particular trade concerned;

(b) Capital Goods sold on medium credit terms which often extend over a few years;

(c) Services.

The General Commodities Policies are issued to cover an exporter's entire sales for a period of a year, with renewal privileges, whereas Capital Goods Policies are issued on an individual basis to cover each specific contract of sale. Services Policies are also issued on an individual basis.

The risks insured by Export Credits Insurance Policies include: insolvency or protracted default on the part of the buyer; exchange restrictions in the buyer's country preventing the transfer of funds to Canada; cancellation of an import licence or the imposition of restrictions on the import of goods not previously subject to restriction; the occurrence of war between the buyer's country and Canada; or of war, revolution, etc., in the buyer's country; and additional transport or insurance charges occasioned by interruption or diversion of voyage outside Canada or the continental United States of America.

Premium rates for this insurance protection are nominal and have averaged less than 1% on all business done by the Corporation to date. Policies are issued on a co-insurance basis and the Corporation insures exporters up to 85% of the selling price.

Under the Export Credits Insurance Act, Sect. 21, the Corporation may be authorized to enter into certain contracts of insurance, where the Board of Directors of the Corporation is of opinion that a proposed contract of insurance would impose upon the Corporation a liability for a term or in an amount in excess of that which the Corporation would normally undertake, and in the opinion of the Minister of Trade and Commerce it is in the national interest that the proposed contract be entered into. Under Sect. 21A of the Act, the Corporation may be authorized by the Government to provide financing in respect of an export transaction. Such financing is available only in cases where extended credit terms in excess of 5 years are involved.

BUREAU OF STATISTICS

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics issues detailed monthly, quarterly and annual reports on Canada's foreign trade. These are extremely useful to exporters and those interested in developing export markets, and to manufacturers and others interested in information on imports. Other statistical publications also provide useful data on other aspects of the Canadian market.

Its monthly reports on the Trade of Canada gives information on trade by commodities, showing for each commodity listed the total quantity and value of the trade and the quantity and value of trade with individual countries. Quarterly reports record trade by countries, showing for each foreign country the quantity and value of trade for every commodity separately listed. A final annual report in three volumes provides complete statistical detail, with comparative figures for two previous years, analyses of the statistics, and information on tariff revenues. Preliminary bulletins supply advance summaries of trade information each month.

The Bureau also issues reviews of Canada's trade, which summarize and interpret the detailed statistics and direct attention to the more important changes they reveal. These figures provide businessmen with information on Canada's exports to specific countries and, to some extent, enable them to determine the sales potential for their own products.

Statistics on the Canadian balance of international payments are released in quarterly and annual reports. These can also be useful to the Canadian manufacturer in studying the international background affecting trade.

All these trade publications — together with numerous others dealing statistically with manufacturing and a wide range of Canadian economic and social activities, many of which provide useful information in planning, marketing and production programs for particular industries — are available at nominal rates from the Bureau of Statistics and from the Queen's Printer, Ottawa. Information as to titles, contents and prices of its reports and bulletins is contained in the 1964 edition of the Bureau's catalogue, entitled "Current Publications", copies of which may be obtained free on request.

EXTERNAL AID OFFICE

The External Aid Office was established in November, 1960, as a separate agency of the Canadian Government incorporating the functions related to Canadian external aid programs formerly performed by the Department of Trade and Commerce, the Department of External Affairs, the Department of Finance and other agencies of government.

The Director General of the External Aid Office is responsible to the Secretary of State for External Affairs for the operation of the following Canadian aid programs:

The Colombo Plan

The Caribbean Aid Program

The Special Commonwealth Africa Aid Program

The Commonwealth Technical Assistance Program

The Program of Educational Assistance for Independent French-speaking African States

Under these programs Canada provides grants of Canadian equipment, commodities and services to help the less-developed countries achieve satisfactory economic progress. All equipment and material is procured in Canada in accordance with established Government purchasing procedures. For these purchases the Canadian Commercial Corporation act as agents for the External Aid Office in most cases. Service contracts are usually let by the External Aid Office with various Departments of Government acting as advisers. Through the technical assistance side of the programs Canadian experts are sent abroad to advise and teach, and trainees from the less-developed countries are brought to Canada for training and study in a variety of fields.

A new development loan program is expected to be introduced in the fiscal year 1964-65 to make low interest, long maturity, liberal grace period loans available for development purposes abroad along IDA lines.

The External Aid Office also administers the Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship Plan in Canada with the Canadian Universities Foundation providing the secretarial services.

In addition the Office co-operates with the United Nations and other international agencies which operate aid programs.

The External Aid Office is located at 75 Albert St., Ottawa.

CANADIAN DEFENCE EXPORT PROGRAM

Canada's defence exports now account for a substantial part of Canadian industrial defence production.

A new International Programs Branch has been established within the Department of Defence Production to provide co-ordinated guidance and control of all defence production co-operation and export activities.

The U. S. Division and the Overseas Division of this Branch are responsible for the co-ordination of departmental and Canadian Commercial Corporation efforts to arrange participation by Canadian industry in defence research, development and production programs of the United States and Overseas Allies.

The Canada-United States Defence Production Sharing Program makes it possible for Canadian firms to participate competitively as prime contractors or sub-contractors for U. S. defence business. A majority of this Canadian material enters the United States free of duty and exempt from the provisions of the Buy American Act.

Many interesting research, development and production programs are also open to Canadian industry in overseas countries including both NATO and national projects.

The Department of Defence Production and the Department of Industry are working in concert to assist the development of Canadian industry, and the Directors of the following Branches in Ottawa should be contacted by Canadian companies interested in further information with regard to participation in defence export opportunities:

Aircraft Branch
Electrical and Electronics Branch
Shipbuilding Branch
Machinery Branch
Mechanical Transport Branch
Chemicals Branch
Materials Branch
Wood Products Branch

EXPORT SERVICES OF THE CANADIAN MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION

The past decade has seen the value of Canadian exports climb from $4.1 billion in 1953 to $6.8 billion in 1963. The number of Canadian companies entering the export field has progressively increased as established companies have looked beyond their domestic markets and new companies have sought a broader base on which to achieve the economies of volume production.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association has always regarded the promotion of Canada's export trade as one of its prime objects, and is therefore so organized that it can provide members with ready access to every kind of export information. The Association holds the view that there is an increasing need to sell more goods abroad and is continually up-dating and improving its services so that expert advice on the techniques and procedures of exporting is available, in addition to data on foreign markets and sales contacts.

The Association's committee structure for the development of trade policy and its staff organization for the provision of direct services to members are designed to place special emphasis on efforts to expand and diversify Canada's exports. Based on the cumulative experience of many years' studies and activities of staff specialists, the Association offers a comprehensive range of informational and educational aids to the exporter covering every stage of his endeavour to seek and serve foreign customers.

Export Information

As international trade expands, so the successful exporter has to cope with ever more rapidly changing economic and trading conditions. In addition to information on potential foreign markets and on up-to-date export techniques, he needs answers to detailed questions concerning the transportation of goods including routings and rates, the tariffs and other trading regulations of importing countries, marine and export credits insurance, trade practices, statistics, credit information, invoicing and documentation requirements and a multitude of other matters.

The CMA with its specialized service departments, particularly those of Commercial Intelligence, Tariff, Transportation and Legislation, and its Division and Branch offices across Canada, is a complete source of reference on these matters. It is also able to authenticate customs invoices, certificates of origin and other customs documents as required by foreign countries. All of these services are free to CMA members. A multilingual translation service is also available.

A check-list of the more commonly sought CMA export services and informational topics is as follows:

Export Education

In this age of specialists, it is essential that the exporter should be knowledgeable about every aspect of his profession. As a further aid to increasing the number of competent exporters, the Association provides a continuing programme of export education through its Export Study Clubs operating in Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba and British Columbia. The function of the Export Study Clubs is purely educational and advisory, providing the opportunity for both new and established exporters to hear addresses by experts from many fields. Regular monthly meetings also feature discussions of common problems, and occasional visits to places of interest are programmed. The Export Study Clubs form by far the largest organization in Canada devoted solely to the promotion of export trade.

During the 1963-64 season, the Export Study Clubs provided varied programmes of down-to-earth discussions on export techniques and subjects covering the chain of export operations, in a concentrated effort to answer the technical problems of newer Canadian exporters. Subjects discussed included export agreements, finance and credit, export credits insurance, cargo insurance, air freight, ocean transportation, materials handling, traffic management, freight forwarding, export services and various aspects of trade development. Trading areas covered were Britain, the United States, South America, the Pacific Rim countries and New Zealand. Special features included the 1964 GATT trade negotiations and non-tariff barriers to trade.

In other meetings and conferences from time to time the Association provides for the examination of current matters concerning Canada's foreign trade, to draw attention to business opportunities in export markets, to discuss changing economic conditions abroad and generally to promote the interests of Canadian exporters. Noteworthy are the World Trade Conferences held each year in conjunction with CMA Annual General Meetings.

Publications

The Association from time to time publishes detailed booklets on various aspects of export trade techniques. These studies, together with other reference publications for exporters, are listed in the chapter headed "Bibliography of Export References".

Industrial Canada

The Association's official monthly magazine "Industrial Canada" is, like the CMA itself, directed towards the promotion of Canadian manufacturing industries and the specific interests of exporters. Its regular service features include timely information on foreign sales opportunities, trade fairs and exhibitions, changes in foreign customs and exchange regulations, and significant news items regarding such matters as import licensing, customs tariffs, transportation developments and export controls in Canada and in other countries. Keeping Canadian exporters up to date on all of these topics and on foreign economic developments which affect the trade climate are the monthly "Industrial Canada" features entitled "Tariff Review", "Trade Developments", "Transportation Digest" and "Where in the World". In addition, special articles on export subjects are periodically included in "Industrial Canada's" editorial programme which is consistently planned to provide readers with expert information on the latest in proven management techniques.

Canadian Trade Index

For over sixty years "Canadian Trade Index", the Association's annual directory, has provided buyers and sellers throughout the world with detailed information to facilitate their contacts with Canadian manufacturers. With a finely-classified products section and details as to the size, type of business, brand names, foreign representation, operating executives, parent-subsidiary relationships and geographical distribution of some 12,250 manufacturers across Canada, "Canadian Trade Index" is an active and effective instrument of trade promotion. Copies are distributed to thousands of importers in over sixty countries through the co-operation of the Canadian Government Trade Commissioner Service.

Circular Service

Important matters of immediate interest to exporters and detailed technical trade data are conveyed to members with all possible speed by CMA circulars, issued at the national, divisional and branch level.

Export Trade Policy

The CMA Export Trade Committee, a joint sub-committee of the Commercial Intelligence and Tariff Committees, co-ordinates policy matters over the whole range of Association studies, services and activities in the field of export. Together with other specialized sub-committees dealing with such matters as trade policy and participation in foreign trade fairs, this Committee has responsibility for developing recommendations as to the Association's policy and action in matters affecting the export trade of member companies and having regard to the impact of imports.

The Association stands for and advocates the greatest possible trade between nations and believes that steadfast support should be given to existing international organizations and institutions in their efforts to solve the problems of world trade and finance. It recognizes that the well-being of the Canadian people depends to a great extent on the volume of Canada's export trade, which provides the means of purchasing necessary imports.

The Association believes that the extent of Canada's export trade depends to a great degree upon the ingenuity and hard work of many thousands of Canadian firms and individuals engaged in the export of foodstuffs, raw materials, manufactured goods and services. Exporters must have all possible knowledge of the trade practices and requirements covering export shipments and it is for this reason that the Association has paid so much attention to its specialized departmental services which have continuously expanded to keep abreast of the times.

In the increasingly complex modern world, however, government policy plays a growing part. Canadian Governments have always displayed a keen interest in the problems of exporters, and, wherever and whenever necessary, the Association has placed the views and recommendations of exporters before the Government concerning trade policy and its administration. Canadian manufacturers and exporters are particularly fortunate in being served by a Trade Commissioner Service which is second to none in the world, and the Association has had particularly cordial relationships with these officers who, on their Canadian tours, have made CMA offices their headquarters for over half a century.

The Association maintains close liaison with federal and provincial government departments concerned with Canada's external trade. It also co-operates with manufacturers' and businessmen's organizations in other countries in the interests of facilitating international commerce and takes an active part in the work of such international bodies as the International Chamber of Commerce, the Inter-American Council of Commerce and Production and the Canadian Business and Industry Advisory Committee for O.E.C.D.

Domtar Packaging is variety, range, scope

Packaging is a wide world of its own. It is corrugated and solid fibre boxes, wrapping papers, folding cartons, liquid food containers, gummed tapes, paper bags, corrugated merchandising materials, other related paper products and fibre cans.

Domtar Packaging encompasses this wide world completely. From Domtar Packaging, manufacturers and retailers can obtain the right packaging for whatever they make and sell.

Domtar Packaging Limited can offer you variety, range and scope through its three major divisions. Each division is a specialist in a particular area of packaging. They are:

BELL-KILGOUR DIVISION: Manufactures a complete line of wrapping papers of all types, paper bags, gummed tapes and other related paper products for industrial and retail uses.

CARTON SPECIALTIES DIVISION: Creates, designs and manufactures a full line of folding cartons and fibre cans to seal in quality and to help you merchandise your products.

HINDE AND DAUCH DIVISION: Canada's leading manufacturer of a wide range of corrugated shipping boxes, solid fibre containers, corrugated and chipboard partitions, corrugated display stands, other corrugated merchandising items and liquid food containers.

Explanation of List

☆ THE LIST beginning on the following page comprises the names and addresses, alphabetically arranged, of all firms appearing in the classified section of Canadian Trade Index. In this list we have tried to give the users of the book some information that will be useful in getting into quick touch with the makers of any desired article.

This list also includes an indication of the number of employees. The rating code letters following each company listing are interpreted as follows:

KEY

(A)	up to 25 employees	(E)	200 to 499 employees
(B)	25 to 49 employees	(F)	500 to 999 employees
(C)	50 to 99 employees	(G)	over 1,000 employees
(D)	100 to 199 employees

We have not attempted to give, in this list, any full account of the products. These will all be found under separate headings in the classified section immediately following the geographical section. Where the firm or company name does not indicate clearly the line of goods manufactured, then some of the main articles produced, or the nature of the firm's business, are mentioned.

For. Rep. or simply Rep. means foreign or other representative for export sales purposes.
